MEMORANDUM FOR:

DICK CHENEY

FROM:

JERRY H. JONES JHJ

P. Has Seen

SUBJECT:

Report on PFC Advisory Committee Meeting on Monday, November 17; 2:30 - 6:30 p.m.

ATTENDEES

Burch	Herman
Harlow	Parma
Laird	Goldwater
Bliss	Callaway
Dole	Spencer
Scott	Marik
Holshouser	Assorted top level PFC staff members,
Douglass	regional directors, etc.

PURPOSE OF THE MEETING

To give a general overview of the organizational decisions made since the previous meeting, to discuss key activities in each area, and to discuss important issues facing the campaign.

AGENDA

- A. Organizational changes and new hires -- Callaway.
- B. Report on the progress of the fundraising efforts -- Moot.
- C. Report on upcoming FEC decisions -- Visser.
- D. Report on progress and organizing of administrative portfolio -- Marik.

- E. State by state summary of political organizations and activities -- Stu Spencer and regional directors.
- F. Comment by Goldwater on organization progress.
- G. Overview of New Hampshire and Florida -- Spencer.
- H. Press plan for Reagan announcement -- Kaye.
- I. Presentation of advertising themes and discussion of initial hard copy of campaign advertising material.
- J. Discussion of key issues facing the campaign by Harlow, et al.

KEY INFORMATION FORTHCOMING

- 1) The campaign organization is beginning to fill out and become operative. Most key slots are now filled and people are in their jobs working to organize the country and key campaign activities.
- 2) Goldwater was generally supportive. He made the following comments:
 - a) Do not get over-confident (in response to the optimistic reports given by the fieldmen).
 - b) Where you have an organization, it is working; where you do not, it is not working.
 - c) The Reagan organization is not as strong as generally thought.
 - d) The key issue will be the economic issue and it should break to our advantage.
 - e) Do not worry about New Hampshire and Florida. They will be tough for the President but remember that Reagan does not have strength in the big states.

3) The fundraising efforts are improving but are still not up to speed. Moot reports that the Committee is spending $150,000 per month more than it is taking in; and that the Committee will be unable to handle it's January program unless fundraising picks up substantially. He intends to submit petitions to certify 23 states for matching funds. This could make $500,000 available at some point in January, if we decide to seek matching funds.

4) Regional organizations are beginning to develop although we lack chairmen in many states and most states are yet to be organized down to the district and county levels. Much remains to be done. While the reports were optimistic, the underlying tone was that there was softness in the support for the President in many areas of the country.

5) The press plan developed for Reagan was a step in the right direction. We at least now have the capability to think about such campaign activities. The plan was not full blown. It did not utilize our full resources; a well squared away organization will be able to do better.

6) The first efforts at an advertising concept looked excellent. All members of the Advisory Board agreed with the concept and had only minor criticism with the actual material.

7) These issues were reported to be of concern in various states (this is a summary based on frequency of mention).

- a. Energy (both for and against higher prices).
- b. New York City (mainly against).
- c. Common Situs Picketing (strongly against).
- d. The Russian grain deal (strongly against in the farm states).
- e. Kissinger's foreign policy.
- f. Presidential travel (non-Presidential and too political).

- g. Rumsfeld (he is thought to be a liberal in some conservative circles).
- h. Concern that the rate of economic recovery is too slow and will damage the campaign. This was seldom mentioned which is surprising.
- i. Mention that the Supreme Court nomination must be well handled.
- j. Mention that the technique of the Halloween Massacre was a major minus. (Particularly the Schlesinger firing.)
- k. Concern that the Administration is not working together as a team -- that Cabinet Officers and key supporters of Ford are not speaking out on his behalf (this was mentioned extensively).
- l. A major concern that there is a growing press bias against the President. Harlow particularly cited this as the major danger and felt that we had to seek out creative ways to get around the press and go directly to the people in a way which demonstrates the excellence of the President's leadership. Harlow suggests that we resurrect the successful programs used in '71 and '72 to do this; as well as those programs attempted in '73 and '74 on Watergate turn-around efforts.

IMPRESSIONS (MINE)

1. The campaign is moving ahead at a notably increased rate. Callaway's commendable efforts to overcome inertia and negative thinking has resulted in a somewhat optimistic view by the fieldmen (or at least the field people felt the organization was considerably more successful than the reports in the press or my own personal sources in various states). The Advisory Group seemed to take these reports with a grain of salt. Optimism is not a problem. The key is that the campaign is moving.

2. The Advisory members' tone was somewhat accusing, both in terms of the campaign progress as well as the ability of the White House to manage the President politically. Committee members generally used this session to unload their bitches.

3. I sense that these men were waiting for leadership in order to get themselves energized and that they were not, on their own, going to hard-charge out in front with a strong demonstration of support for the President. They seemed to be reluctant to urge others to get out in front as well.

Callaway is a real battler and was the only one attempting to motivate enthusiasm and support for the President in an aggressive way. The rest were hunkered down (to steal an LBJ phrase).

4. I sense the organization was a mixed bag with some very experienced people (I was particularly impressed with Spencer and Dailey) and many green people in the organization. The new people will be much better in two months but their success depends on how able the Reagan people are against whom they are matched.

5. There seemed to be a very strong sense that the White House was not handling minor decisions and activities well. There was a pronounced tendency to dwell on rather minor negative problems rather than on the positive broad view that the President is handling a lot of tough problems well and must be nominated if the Republican Party is to have a chance to remain in the White House. There did not seem to be a willingness to forget the minor problems in order to accomplish the much greater goal.

6. The issues that were identified as being problems or negative are those mainly under direct White House and Administration control. To the extent we are forced to run an issue campaign, the campaign organization will be of little help in overcoming the negativism on specific issues. Only the President and the White House can do this.

7. Harlow's comments on a rapidly developing press bias reflect my own feelings. I fear this bias is an epidemic problem which we must address immediately and make major efforts to overcome. Otherwise it could become extremely damaging to the President.

8. In summary, the picture that emerged is not as bad as I thought it would be; but it is far from being as good as it must be. We have a long way to go; our resources are presently very thin to accomplish the campaign job (both in the White House and PFC). We must keep all possible pressure on the serious problems. Anything less is going to result in too little, too late.
