(MORE)

David H. Roe, 34, of Alexandria, Virginia, Major in the United States Air Force, Research Assistant to the Department of Defense Committee on Excellence in Education, Washington, D.C.

W. Scott Thompson, 33, of Cambridge, Massachusetts, Associate Professor of International Politics, the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, Medford, Massachusetts.

Judith A. Walter, 34, of San Francisco, California, Assistant Vice President, International Division, Wells Fargo Bank, San Francisco, California.

The White House Fellowship program was established in 1964 to provide outstanding young Americans with firsthand experience in the process of governing the nation. It is open to U.S. citizens from all occupations and professions who are no less than 23 and no more than 35 years of age by the commencement of the Fellowship year. (Employees of the Executive Branch of the Federal Government are not eligible, with the exception of career Armed Forces personnel.)

Fellows are assigned either to the staff of the President or the Vice President or to members of the Cabinet or heads of agencies for their year-long Fellowship. In addition to this work assignment, the Fellows participate in an extensive education program that includes 150-200 off-the-record seminar meetings with top Federal, state and local government officials, scholars, journalists, and leaders from business, labor and other segments of private life.
