Dear Mr. President:

Mildred and I congratulate you on the great fight you waged against heavy odds. More important, we want to express our admiration for your conduct of the Presidency in the difficult period that began in August, 1974. Despite the outcome of the election, you have the respect and good will of the American people.

We are disappointed in the results, not only because you deserved better but also because the country deserved better. The meaning of the election for the future of freedom here is uncertain and worrisome. But still, the issue is not settled and the opportunity remains for those who value the free society to continue to work for it, as you have been doing so vigorously.

Best wishes to you and Mrs. Ford.

Sincerely,

Herbert Stein
