Mr. Hartmann:

Dorothy says the President
wants these letters out TODAY
if the letter meets your approval.

Dorothy has ordered the additional calculators.

Should Congressman McFall also receive one?

Dear _____,

On my recent trip to the Far East, I just had to squeeze in enough personal time in a very tight schedule, to allow me to find this little Christmas gift and souvenir of Japan for you.

It is an excellent pocket calculator --- but it also has other accomplishments. For instance, if you punch 77340 into the calculator and then turn it upside down, you will see what the Republicans said after the 1974 election.

But this little machine is also a fortune-telling calculator -- and if you punch in 3507 and turn it upside down, you will see what we don't intend to do in 1976!

Have a Merry Christmas and a very Happy New Year!

FOR LES ARENDS:

P.S. --- This is also a personalized calculator. Punch in 537, turn it upside down and you'll see what I mean.

WASHINGTON

December 16, 1974

Mr. Hartmann:

I have given to Dorothy, to be signed, 29 copies of the V. P. Remarks and Presidential Oath and Remarks (one booklet (2 extra) for the V.P. staff invid to the inauguration)

The medals are being wrapped as are the Presidential and Vice Presidential Oaths and the V. P. Hearings books. All will be returned to me so that I may affix the proper tags.

QUESTION:

The remainder of the guest list at the Swearing In of the President totals: 134

Do we give these people the already signed Presidential Oath booklets of which we have 98.

Or... do we give them unsigned V. P. Remarks and Presidential Oath and Remarks (one booklet ) of which we have 115?

Gail

Also: we have to find a way to have these personally delivered to those people in Washington, D. C.. Could Al do this?

Gail understands from Mr. Hartmann that the people on the Vice President's staff who were invited to the ceremony were to receive autographed copies of the two speeches. Those were the only folks to receive autographed copies.

Dorothy said the President asked last night how these were coming along.

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

December 10, 1974

Mr. Hartmann:

There are 145 copies of the V. P. address.

There are 163 couples and individuals
on the guest list.

I am taking one copy of each over to Mr.
Pagnotta and see what we can arrange in way of a mounting.

Mr. Hartmann:

The total of people on this list is 301.

In order to get a list of who actually attended, Lucy Winchester's office
suggested I contact Chief Drescher of the White House Police-only they have the check-off list as people entered the White House complex.
