THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

May 7, 1975

Dear Mrs. Ford,

RE: Table Decor for the State Dinner Honoring Prime Minister Lee of Singapore on May 8, 1975

The centerpiece on each table is a reproduction of the Annapolis Subscription Plate Bowl by The Stieff Company of Baltimore. This bowl has just been reproduced in sterling silver and pewter by the Stieff Company, and the bowls gracing the tables are pewter. The reproduction is an exact copy of Annapolis silversmith John Inch's Annapolis Subscription Plate (bowl), the earliest surviving piece of silver made in Maryland. The original commemorates the first recorded formal horse race in the state and was awarded to the winner in 1743. The antique is presently owned by the Baltimore Museum of Art where it is on permanent display.

In each bowl are assorted summer garden flowers, including lavender and white sweet peas, white butterfly roses, sonia roses, dark blue and light blue delphinium, blue cornflowers (or bachelor buttons), orange and yellow mid-century lilies, sterling silver roses, and cut Boston and springari ferns.

The tables, covered with the pink scalamandre tablecloths, will be set with the Gorham silver, the Kennedy crystal, and the Johnson china.

Thank you.

Nancy R.

The White House
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. President:

Again your invitation for dinner honors me.

To my regret, on Thursday evening, 8 May 1975, I will be doing my thing in Johannesburg, South Africa; but please don't give up on me. We still have another five years to make a dinner possible at The White House.

I wish you the best of everything, but you still owe me a meal.

Most affectionately,

Telly Savalas

EDWARD VILLELLA, a principal dancer with the New York City Ballet, was born in Bayside, New York, and began his dance studies at age ten. At fifteen, he withdrew from the School of American Ballet to prepare for a maritime career. He is today probably the world's only ballet star with a bachelor's degree in maritime engineering, a college varsity letter for baseball, and a trophy won as a collegiate welterweight.

In late 1955, Mr. Villella was mugged and suffered a severe concussion; he resumed dancing as therapy for this injury. Two years later, he joined the New York City Ballet, where he has danced in some two dozen roles. Mr. Villella has been a guest artist with leading European and American ballet companies; performed with symphony orchestras throughout the United States; appeared on a variety of television shows, including a one hour network special of which he was the subject; and participated extensively in the New York City Ballet's lecture-demonstration program. He also serves as a member of the National Council on the Arts.

VIOLETTE VERDY, one of the nation's leading ballerinas, was born in Brittany, France; studied ballet in Paris; and made her stage debut in 1944. During her career, she has appeared with a number of major European ballet companies, and has acted on stage, television and in films. Miss Verdy first performed in the United States in 1953. Five years later, she joined the New York City Ballet, where she has danced more than 25 roles, many of which were created for her by the company's director, George Balanchine. Miss Verdy is an active teacher of dance and devotes considerable time to the scholarship program of the School of American Ballet. She has also choreographed three ballets and written a book on dance.
