AMERICA AT THE MOVIES

A MOTION PICTURE CREATED AND PRODUCED FOR THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION BICENTENNIAL ADMINISTRATION BY THE AMERICAN FILM INSTITUTE
"The movies," writes Librarian of Congress Daniel J. Boorstin, "were an American invention which, more than any before, focused the vision of the world. And motion pictures became the great democratic art, which naturally enough, was the characteristic American art."

It is for this reason that the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration in association with The American Film Institute offers a film for the American people and the world as we celebrate our Bicentennial in 1976.

"America at the Movies" traces how the United States has been portrayed on the screen for over three-quarters of a century. Compiled of great scenes drawn from nearly a hundred films, it shows the boundless diversity of the American experience—a national family album.

This motion picture was made possible by the enthusiastic participation of all segments of the American motion picture industry—the producing companies, the unions, the guilds and the many individual artists.

I am grateful to the American Film Institute, an independent non-profit organization serving the public interest which was established by The National Endowment for the Arts in 1967 to advance the art and preserve the heritage of film in America. I am especially grateful to its Director, George A. Stevens, Jr., whose creativity guided this project throughout.

The frontier was the great American legend. Across the screen moved mountain men and settlers, cowboys and sodbusters struggling to subdue the land...
For the movies, the city was the place where the action was. Here, you could slam your way to fame, sell an idea, meet a girl. In streets that never slept walked the casts of a thousand movies...
America was built on the family, and so were the movies. The family was the nation in miniature and from it the movies portrayed a gallery of sweethearts, parents, grandparents and children—all part of the oldest, the most intimate human drama....

THE FAMILIES

A Place in the Sun

America was built on the family, and so were the movies. The family was the nation in miniature and from it the movies portrayed a gallery of sweethearts, parents, grandparents and children—all part of the oldest, the most intimate human drama....
During two hundred years, the nation fought wars in different places for different reasons. The places changed, the reasons changed, but not the fighting men—and it was their story the movies told...
The movies shared with us a great and simple secret—that often there is more truth in the dream than in the facts. And the movies conveyed a special spirit to audiences around the world...

Dear John:

I am aware that representatives of the Cultural Laureate Foundation have been in touch with you. They have also visited with me.

Our office would be very grateful if you would meet personally with these people for the purpose of evaluating their program. I would want to mention to you that there has been some question raised by them in reference to past contacts they have had with staff members of the Commission in which they raise a question as to possible conflict of interest.

I am not completely aware of the latter charge. In your conversation with them it would warrant consideration by you. Just what might be the proper course of action in this regard I am not certain.
The proposal Don Miller and Allen Turner have in mind as to their project seems to have had considerable thought and is a rather unusual idea.

Thanking you, I am

Sincerely,

John O. Marsh, Jr.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: ANNE ARMSTRONG

SUBJECT: Bicentennial and Longer Range Potential of Excess Federal Land in the Vicinity of Beltsville, Maryland

This memorandum relates to my duties in both the Federal Property Council and Bicentennial areas.

Approximately 3,600 acres of land at the Agricultural Research Center in Beltsville, Maryland, have been reported to the General Services Administration as excess to the needs of the Department of Agriculture.

The land is worth about $13 million but has been essentially unused since 1971. It constitutes one of the few remaining undeveloped large-acreage areas in the Baltimore-National Capital area, a region which has a shortage of land set aside for recreation and conservation purposes.

There are numerous groups and individuals who are pressing the Federal government to decide what is to be done with this valuable land. Some have requested that portions or all of it be made available to the State of Maryland, Prince George's County, or certain educational institutions. Others, including Senators Mathias and Beall and Congressman Hogan, favor Federal retention of the property as an entity, with it being used for recreation, conservation, and wildlife preservation activities.

The National Capital Bicentennial celebration also has a bearing upon the utilization of the Beltsville property. First, the Department of the Interior hopes to obtain approximately 900 of the 3,600 excess acres for inclusion in its Patuxent Wildlife Research Center. The Department has funds earmarked for a visitor's center which can be ready in 1976 provided work can commence soon.

Second, the Beltsville property has the potential for alleviating the projected Bicentennial shortages in both campsites and fringe parking spaces. More than 50% of the visitors to the National Capital Bicentennial celebration are expected to arrive through the Baltimore-Washington highway... corridor, and the Beltsville property is located near the Baltimore-Washington Parkway. The land has the potential to provide 600 mobile camper sites, which would reduce the estimated campsite deficit by more than 10%. Similarly, it could accommodate parking for 1,000 cars and be useful in meeting some of the fringe parking needs on those special days when abnormally large visitor influxes overload the normal fringe parking lots.

For those reasons, and because current parking plans could go awry, the White House Interagency Bicentennial Task Force does not want to preclude making camping and parking facilities available on the Beltsville property.

Here are three options for your consideration:

-- Option 1: The excess land at Beltsville is committed to long-range recreation, conservation, wildlife preservation, and related scientific and educational purposes; the Patuxent Wildlife Research Center receives approximately 900 of the 3,600 excess acres; the Department of the Interior undertakes a study to recommend the long-term management of the excess property, what investments will be required, and who (Federal, state, or local agency or combination thereof) should be assigned that responsibility; and, in the interim, the property remains available as a potential supplement to the Bicentennial celebration camping and fringe parking plans.

-- Option 2: The same as Option 1 except that a specific camping project would be launched and would be Federally-sponsored, and a supplemental $1.5 million FY 75 appropriation would be sought to construct Bicentennial facilities.

-- Option 3: Transfer about 900 of the 3,600 excess acres to the Department of the Interior for inclusion in the Patuxent Wildlife Research Center; forego all other Bicentennial potential and, without additional analysis, abandon further Federal consideration of integrated long-range planning for the remaining 2,700 excess acres; and immediately make the property or portions thereof available to Federal agencies, the State of Maryland, or local jurisdictions for a variety of potential uses.

In considering these three options and others, two criteria have been uppermost in my thinking. First, there is a real need to preserve the recreation and conservation potential of the Beltsville property. Second, the value of the land is due to its location and size, and every effort should be made to avoid a piece-meal disposition of the property. These two principles have been the common threads running through most of the proposals we have considered, and have been explicitly supported by the two Maryland Senators and the Congressman.
Option 3 does not meet these two criteria, while Options 1 and 2 do. However, Option 2 necessitates an immediate Federal outlay of about $1.5 million, and neither reprogramming the Department of Interior budget nor seeking an FY 1975 supplemental appropriation seem advisable at this time.

Therefore, as Chairman of the Federal Property Council and as Chairman of the White House Interagency Bicentennial Task Force, I recommend that you select Option 1. Rog Morton and the members of the Federal Property Council (Roy Ash, Philip Buchen, Dean Burch, Alan Greenspan, Bill Timmons, and Russ Peterson) concur in this recommendation. While Ash supports Option 1, he strongly believes that the development and operation of a Beltsville recreation area on this property should not be a Federal government responsibility. Therefore, he believes and I agree, that in the implementation of Option 1, we should assure that State or local jurisdictional responsibility receive high consideration.

Agree; implement Option 1. Disagree; prefer Option 2.

Disagree; prefer Option 3.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE HONORABLE JAY T. FRENCH
Assistant Counsel to the President

Re: The Bill of Rights and the 200th Anniversary of our Independence

In accordance with your request of December 10, there is enclosed a statement on the above for your use.

Leon Ulman
Deputy Assistant Attorney General
Office of Legal Counsel STATEMENT

The Bill of Rights has been an integral part of our Constitution since 1791. It was embodied in the Constitution to prevent that document from being misconstrued and abused, and to assure public confidence that the Government could not exceed its constitutional powers. And it has served those purposes admirably.

The Bill of Rights is the basic guarantee of the rights and freedoms of the American people. It reflects the high place of the individual in our way of life. It represents the Nation's safeguard against the many grievances and wrongs which culminated in the Declaration of Independence.

The American Revolution Bicentennial Administration was established by the Congress to commemorate the historic events associated with the American Revolution. Through our nationwide observance of the 200th anniversary birth of the United States of America, we hope to reaffirm our belief in the dignity and worth of the individual and to demonstrate what it means to live in a free world under a truly representative government.

Sir: We are students at Elmwood Park Memorial High School and also members of the Junior High Bicentennial Club. As one of our projects we have selected the topic “Bill of Rights Day,” 1974. Our nation has recently seen the Bill of Rights violated. We pray that the Bill of Rights will never again be violated.

Sir, may we please have a statement by you for our project on “The Bill of Rights Reborn” as a result of the recent Washington scandals. May we also have an autographed copy of your picture for our exhibit.

Bicentennial year is coming soon and we would like to know how your state is going

Dear Mr. Buchen:

This is in response to your December 17, 1974 letter concerning the recent referral to this Department by the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration of a matter involving possible violations of federal criminal laws by government officials and employees.

To further clarify the allegations which have been made, the Criminal Division requested, on December 20, 1974, that the Federal Bureau of Investigation interview the individual who made these allegations. When the interview has been conducted, the Criminal Division will determine what further investigation is appropriate.

If the investigation develops information sufficient to reflect upon the suitability for office of any member of the White House staff or other Presidential appointee, you will be advised accordingly.

11:20  Norman Gisclair was referred to us by another office in the White House.

Mr. Gisclair filed suit in Baton Rouge last Friday for the return of a statue of George Washington -- suit filed against Abraham Lincoln, which will be served on President Ford.

He has had newspaper and TV coverage and is trying to drum up interest in the bicentennial and has had some ideas come in from the newspaper coverage.

I called John Warner's office in the Bicentennial Administration and they referred me to Eugene Skora, General Counsel.

I asked if Mr. Skora could call Mr. Gisclair.

Mr. Skora will let us know the result of the call.

Dear Mr. Broberg and Miss McClellan;

On behalf of the President, I wish to acknowledge and thank you for your recent letter regarding your plans to produce a motion picture based on the life of George Washington, to be released in the summer of 1976.

The President was interested to learn of this project, which coincides with the celebration of our Nation's Bicentennial next year, and he very much appreciated your thoughtfulness in inviting him or any of his colleagues, to back this production. However, because of his numerous official commitments, he must necessarily limit his participation in outside activities and organizations. Further, I am sure you will understand that it would not be appropriate for the President to personally endorse or back a commercial venture.

The President has asked me to extend his best wishes to you and your associates for every success in carrying out your plans for this production.

Sincerely,

Philip W. Buchen

Dear Leonard:

After our lunch last month I have learned that Robin West at the White House is in charge of developing procedures for making Medal of Freedom awards.

Therefore, I have sent him a copy of your letter of January 13 and have asked him to respond as soon as possible.

I have received several copies of Dorothy's splendid article on Sally Saidman. It made delightful reading and the only possible fault I could find with it came from Sally's mistake about my being a poet.

With best wishes.

The American Revolution Bicentennial Board has requested that the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration be authorized to perform, without regard to certain provisions of law or limitations of authority, the functions authorized under the act to establish the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration (Public Law 93-179 87 Stat. 697, hereinafter referred to as the act). I have determined that it would be in furtherance of the purposes of the act to provide such authorization.

NOW, THEREFORE, by virtue of the authority vested in me by section 11 of the act, and as President of the United States of America, it is hereby ordered as follows:

Section 1. The American Revolution Bicentennial Administration is authorized to perform the functions authorized by the act without regard to the following specified provisions of law and limitations of authority:

(a) section 638(a) of title 31 of the United States Code to the extent that it pertains to hiring passenger motor vehicles.

(b) section 13 of title 41 of the United States Code.

(c) section 501 of title 44 of the United States Code.

(d) Any provision of law or limitation of authority to the extent that such provision or limitation would limit or prohibit:

(1) selection of, and award of contracts to, a State or local government agency or non-profit organization on a sole-source basis.

(2) expenditure of not to exceed $10,000 annually of funds received pursuant to contracts under section 2(f) of the act for official receptions and representation, and

(3) expenditure of appropriated funds for transportation and subsistence of volunteers.
Sec. 2. It is directed that each specific use of the waivers of statutes and limitations of authority authorized by the foregoing provisions of this order shall be made only with the advice of the General Counsel of the Administration, and only when determined in writing by the Administrator (or in his absence by the Deputy Administrator) that such use is specifically in furtherance of the purposes of the act and in the public interest.

Thank you very much, John, distinguished Members of the Congress, members of the Continental Army, it is a great privilege and pleasure to join you this morning and to launch this extremely important conference of representatives from the Federal Government, the State Bicentennial Commissions and the staff of the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration.

All of you have contributed most significantly thousands and thousands of hours of work preparing for events during the next 21 months. Your dedication will make this Bicentennial into a profound renewal for our great country, the United States of America. Your sense of having participated will be your best reward.

This group comes from many occupations in many different parts of our Nation, and I was privileged, yesterday, to meet so many of you personally. You reflect what I find most exciting about the Bicentennial activities -- they flow from the spirit of all of our people -- they are truly national in scope and truly non-partisan. The Bicentennial involves all sections of our country and yet represents a unity of purpose. As all of you know, perhaps better than I, over 6,000 projects are now planned with more being added everyday and every month. They represent the diversity of our national heritage and the imagination of our citizens.

There are beautification programs, restoration projects, educational efforts and medical research, all under the Bicentennial banner.

In New York City, the South Street Seaport with a museum and rejuvenated sailing ships will commemorate the Bicentennial.

Third graders in Riceville, Iowa, sold cookies and Christmas trees to finance a Bicentennial mini-park.
And in the Texas towns of Howardswick, Clarendon and Hedley, a community Bicentennial amphitheater is being built of bricks hand-made by the school children of those three towns.

MORE
I think these projects show there is not just one way, but many, many ways to observe the Nation's 200th birthday, and I vividly recall, as a young lad, being taught that the beauty of Joseph's coat is its many, many colors.

Just as the strength of the Nation comes from the richness of its many ideas, so does the strength of the Bicentennial.

This celebration period is an important opportunity for this Nation to reflect on the past and even more so, to look to the future. John Adams envisioned the celebration of the Declaration of Independence in a letter to his wife, Abigail, in July of 1976. John Adams wrote the following:

"I am apt to believe that it will be celebrated by succeeding generations as the great anniversary festival. It ought to be commemorated as the day of deliverance, by solemn acts of devotion to Almighty God. It ought to be solemnized with pomp and parade, with shows, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires and illuminations, from one end of this continent to the other, from this time forward forevermore."

John Adams, who would later be the first Vice President and the second President of the United States, did not know, at that time, what the outcome of the Declaration of Independence would be, nor did he realize that the day would come when the United States would stretch across the continent and across the distant seas.

But, like other revolutionary leaders, he had faith in the future of the unformed Nation. Those were exciting, those were frustrating and those were confusing times.

Letters and newspapers were carried by horseback, or by ship, but the ferment of the ideas was strong enough to overcome the limited means of communication.

The Continental Congress, composed of representatives from different States, oftentimes with conflicting interests, faced the almost insurmountable job of agreeing long enough to fight a war with limited funds and limited manpower.

It was a tough job, because it is always difficult to unclash demands. But the job was done, the Revolution was successful, and a unique Constitution was written. Those Americans did not fail us.

As Thomas Jefferson wrote Lafayette: "We are not to be expected to be translated from despotism to liberty in a featherbed."
And the Americans who inherited the new form of government knew what Jefferson meant. They did not fail us.

We are here today because no ensuing generation of our fellow Americans found self-government to be a "featherbed."

Now, as we commemorate the deeds of the first citizens of the Nation, we must look, as they did, to the future. We must ask ourselves what will we leave to the next generation? What will America be in another 200 years?

I concede it is almost beyond our ability to foresee. Jefferson, Franklin, Washington and others, could not know what their efforts would produce, neither can we. But we can act to honor our highest obligation, to leave the Nation free and secure, as it has been passed down to us.

Each generation has been called on to accept the challenge of a different crisis, and each generation has lived up to its responsibility.

In 1812, our young Nation faced its first war -- another struggle with Britain. The Capitol and the White House were burned, and President James Madison and his wife, Dolly, fled the City. But the fledgling Nation pulled itself together and survived. The Capitol and the White House were rebuilt -- this country continued to grow. Those Americans did not fail us.

When the debate over slavery and union erupted into war, Americans fought Americans, but the end of the war brought renewal, and the task of settling the continent went on. Those Americans did not fail us.

When a great crisis of spirit caused by the Depression struck the Nation, millions of Americans living today did not fail us. They pulled themselves together and kept the Nation going.

In two World Wars, Americans gave their time, talent, resources, yes, and many their lives, to keep the cause of freedom alive. They did not fail us.

In unhappy times and unpopular wars, Americans accept the challenge. No generation of Americans has failed to accept the necessary sacrifices of the day. I am convinced we will not fail ourselves or future generations.

Today, we face new challenges -- our economic and energy problems. New perceptions, yes, and new priorities are required to meet new difficulties.

MORE
We are engaged in a great national debate on how to solve economic and energy problems of very serious proportions. Solutions will require the same hard work and tenacity required to wage a successful revolution, establish a working government, carve a civilization out of the wilderness, produce the greatest industrial machine ever developed and to also produce the highest standard of living of any Nation in the world.

In another 200 years, in 2175, Americans will prepare to celebrate the Nation's 400th birthday. We must act now so that they can say of us: "Americans in the 1970s did not fail us."

We can remember the past with flags and parades and fireworks as President Adams envisioned in the first summer of our independence, but to honor the past, we must hand this magnificent experiment in self-government on to future generations, free and strong.

As we prepare for our Bicentennial, we must join together to make sure that America's past is truly the prologue to a greater future. We must not fail. We will succeed.

Thank you very much.

Dear Mr. Adam,

It was of special interest to learn of plans for the restoration of historic Gadsby’s Tavern in Alexandria. Although I am unable to have an active role in this project, it would be a pleasure to have my name listed as Honorary Chairman of the Friends of Gadsby’s Tavern reflecting my encouragement for these efforts to preserve this historic meeting place. The real meaning of the Bicentennial lies in the hearts and minds of the people of this country. This project captures this spirit.

Dear Phil:

I know how busy you are and certainly do not want to impose on our friendship, however, I would like to ask two favors of you. If they are an imposition, please let me know and I will understand.

First, I intend to visit Washington with Nina and the children. Because of the Ford administration and the Bicentennial, there will never be another opportunity to have a trip that will mean as much during our lifetimes. My problem is that of not knowing if the summer of 1975 or the summer of 1976 would be the best time for the trip. I would appreciate your advice on this as well as your telling me what agencies to contact in order that I will know what to do and where to go.

My second problem is that I have a close personal friend in Houston who is an avid collector of autographed first editions of books. He has a first edition volume of the President's book, "Portrait of the Assassin". It would mean a great deal to me personally if there were some way to get the volume autographed for him.

Thank you for whatever help you can give me. I am looking forward to seeing and hearing about your experiences.

Sincerely,

Joe

Mr. Buchen asked me to send you this -- as a result of your phone conversation with him yesterday.
9:50 Eliska mentioned yesterday that the President had cut a tape on this bicentennial package. I told her we had received a letter from John D. Rockefeller, 3rd, with a draft letter for the President's signature -- so she suggested calling Dick Lukstadt. Mr. Lukstadt said he got in on all this ex post facto -- he would have recommended to the President not to even do the taping if he had been in on it earlier. It is a very fine program but these things could be interpreted as an endorsement by the President and then all the groups everywhere would expect theirs to be endorsed also.

Feels it might be wise to talk with you about the whole thing -- so you could decide what to do with the Rockefeller letter.

(Dick has talked with John Marsh about all this too)

Dear Mr. Buchen:

It was good to see you again at the dinner for the Vice President last week.

My warmest thanks to you for your help in connection with our Bicentennial Declaration. You indicated that it was not practical for the President to sign the Declaration personally but that you felt sure he would be glad instead to sign a personal letter in support of our efforts.

Attached is a draft of such a letter which from our point of view would be helpful.

Dear Mr. Rockefeller:

I appreciated the opportunity of talking with you recently about the forthcoming Bicentennial.

Particularly, I was interested in the Bicentennial Declaration which you brought to my attention believing that the four points which it makes are fundamental in this critical period of our history. You have my wholehearted support in your efforts to bring the Declaration effectively to the American public. [As you know, I was pleased to tape a statement for the closed circuit program concerning the Declaration.]

Recognizing the magnitude of the communications problem involved, I was gratified to learn of the close working relationship which you have established with Mr. Warner and the American Revolutionary Bicentennial Administration (ARBA), [as well as the support which you have been receiving in the private sector, particularly from the mass media and major business corporations.]

In closing, may I express again my warm thanks to you for the leadership which you are taking on behalf of the Bicentennial. The hour is late and efforts such as yours are important to the final result.

Yours sincerely,
9:55 Russ Rourke wanted you to see this -- feels you will undoubtedly be asked about this at the dinner this evening in New York ------ by John D. Rockefeller, 3rd.

MEMORANDUM FOR: PAUL THEIS
FROM: PHILIP BUCHEN

Attached is a copy of a Bicentennial declaration prepared under the auspices of John D. Rockefeller, III and signed in the original form by persons whose names appear at the end of the declaration, along with a copy of a letter from Mr. Rockefeller to the President.

Mr. Rockefeller has urged the President to become an additional signer of the declaration on the theory that he would be doing so as a citizen and not in an official capacity. I did talk to Mr. Rockefeller on February 13 and explained to him that it is not advisable as a practical matter to have the President separate himself from his official role on a matter of this sort. I also pointed out that although Presidents have traditionally endorsed worthy causes or proposals initiated by people in the private sector, I would not think it appropriate for any President to do so by joining with others in signing a particular document.

I would suggest, however, that it would be appropriate for the President to write a letter to Mr. Rockefeller commending him on the declaration and expressing his appreciation for the theme of the document. Accordingly, I would appreciate having someone in your office draft for my preliminary review a proposed letter from the President.

    Don Rumsfeld
This great country of ours stands at a crucial turning point in its history. We face new and serious problems and uncertainty as to the future.

Two hundred years ago, our founding fathers stood at a similar crossroads. Beset then by grave doubts, they ultimately resolved to stake everything on a handful of ideas and ideals.

They forged those ideas and ideals into founding principles and then fought to uphold them. The American Revolution brought forth a new system of government based on freedom, justice, and individual rights.

Today we are called upon to maintain and improve that system and to fulfill those principles. We are called upon to resolve our problems in such areas as the economy, equal opportunity, the quality of life in our cities and rural areas, education, the environment, and many others.

We, the undersigned, believe - and we feel confident we reflect the sense of the American people - that we have reached the point in our history when a second American Revolution is called for, a revolution not of violence, but of fulfillment, of fresh purposes, and of new directions.

We believe that the Bicentennial of our founding offers just such an opportunity. To realize this potential, we believe the Bicentennial must be based on four fundamentals.

Let us be inspired by our origins, and by the challenges we face.

If we are not today an inspired people, we need to be reminded that we once were, and must be again. There is high inspiration to be found in the great ideals that created our country. The phrases that have been worn smooth by use have fresh and urgent meaning for us today - "government by consent of the governed," "the blessings of liberty," "all men are created equal," "a nation of laws." The Bicentennial can and must become a time to celebrate those ideals, not just in a festive sense, but in the more profound sense of renewal and rededication.
Let us make the Bicentennial a great period of achievement, nationally and in every community.

What our forebears did 200 years ago had never been done before. What we must do today is equally unprecedented. At every level in our society, there is an urgent need for achievement - in education, housing, transportation, the arts, communications, new ways of solving social problems, new methods of setting goals for the future, increased citizen participation in government. We believe that dedicating the Bicentennial to achievement is the way to put the sense of alienation and powerlessness behind us, to become once again the masters of our own destiny.

Let us commit ourselves to a Bicentennial Era, to at least the same time span required for the founding of our nation.

The first American Revolution neither started nor ended on the Fourth of July, 1776. Thirteen difficult years elapsed between the signing of the Declaration of Independence and the creation of an enduring system of government based on the Constitution. Many of the problems of today are different from those of 200 years ago, but they are at least as grave. Therefore, the second American Revolution will require at least a comparable period of time to grow strong and firm roots. We endorse the concept of a Bicentennial Era from 1976 to 1989, not as a prolonged festival, but as a realistic period for tough-minded planning and accomplishment.

Let us put our trust once again in individual initiative, in the commitment and participation of each individual citizen.

Our great experiment in democracy will surely erode unless the Bicentennial Era becomes a time when we once again assert the primacy of individual initiative in moving our country forward. Governmental units at all levels must play their part in a vigorous, open, and supportive way. But the primary responsibility lies with the people, not with government. Let each of us, acting alone and in groups, take our own initiatives. There is work for all - for each individual - in every part of the country, of every color, creed, age, and ethnic background. That work must begin now.

For our part, we, the undersigned, pledge ourselves to spread this message throughout the land, and to undertake our own individual initiatives. We earnestly invite our fellow citizens, all those who share our vision of what the Bicentennial Era can mean and accomplish, to lend their time, their energy, and their spirit to the work that lies ahead.

Dear Mr. President:

How thoughtful of you to write me concerning the Rockefeller Public Service Awards Luncheon on December fourth. It meant so very much to us and to the occasion to have you present. Your gracious comments about my part in the program were deeply appreciated.

Early last week, I met with your associate, John Marsh, to talk about the Bicentennial. For sometime now I have been concerned that people are thinking of the Bicentennial almost entirely as a birthday party. To me it must not only be based on the inspirational, going back to the spirit of our forebears, but it must focus on achievement—the overcoming of the problems which face us today. And underlying it all must be the recognition of the importance of individual initiative.

By now Mr. Marsh, I am sure, will have shown you the Bicentennial Declaration which we discussed. If the occasion is to have the meaning and the depth, which I believe it can and must have, we need your participation in the presentation of the Declaration to the public. I hope so much that we can meet briefly sometime at your convenience before too long.

With warm best wishes, I am

Dear Mr. Marsh:

I appreciated the opportunity to talk with you earlier in the week. When I telephoned you asking for the appointment, I had not realized the full extent of your own knowledge about the Bicentennial as well as your interest in it. It is most gratifying.

As you realize, time is running in relation to the Bicentennial. If it is to be accepted by the public as more than a birthday party, it is essential that we move promptly with a communications program such as we outlined to you. Key to this approach would be President Ford's interest and participation.

You stated that you would be glad to discuss with the President the Bicentennial Declaration which we left with you. What I would like to urge is that as soon as possible a follow-up meeting with the President be arranged so that we could present more specifically alternative programs which would result in his effective support.

As I understand it, the President is off this weekend for a week of skiing in Colorado. Might it be possible to get together sometime during the following week--the week of the twenty-ninth? I might mention that I hope to be away the week beginning on January fifth but will be here right along otherwise.

I look forward to working with you in connection with this important matter.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. President:

On September 6, 1974, at Independence Hall in Philadelphia, you announced that you would return to the city of Philadelphia on the Fourth of July 1976, the culmination of our nation's Bicentennial celebration. We are, of course very honored that you will be in our State on this most historic occasion.

A special ceremony is planned for July 4, 1976 in Philadelphia, to which all the leaders of our government will be invited. They include the Vice President, members of the U.S. Senate and the House of Representatives, the Justices of the Supreme Court, the President's Cabinet and the Governors of the 50 States.

To permanently commemorate this significant event for all Americans, The Official Bicentennial Day Commission, organized under the auspices of the Bicentennial authorities of the City of Philadelphia and the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, will issue a most appropriate commemorative of Bicentennial Day. This special commemorative, which will be made available to the public, will consist of a sterling silver medal and the "Bicentennial Day Declaration" reaffirming the principles set forth in the Declaration of Independence. It is planned that this historic Bicentennial declaration will bear the signatures of all the distinguished leaders of our nation who have been invited to attend the July Fourth ceremonies in Philadelphia. Any funds received by the Commission will be directed to official Bicentennial activities.

A copy of the full text of the Bicentennial Day Declaration is enclosed for your information. To enable the Commission to include your signature among the other distinguished American leaders whose names will appear on this document, will you please provide your authorization by signing the attached. For reproduction purposes, I am requesting that you sign in black ink. A member of my staff will contact your office to have the signed authorization personally delivered to me.

It is my privilege to participate with you and the Commission in this historic commemoration.

Kindest personal regards.

Sincerely,

Hugh Scott
Republican Leader

March 25, 1975

Dear Joe:

Thank you for your recent letter of March 8, 1975. Events have indeed kept us very busy. However, I have attached a list of offices that you might contact for general information about the Bicentennial celebration in Washington during 1975 and 1976.

Also, I would like to assist you by asking the President to autograph your friend’s copy of Portrait of the Assassin, but the President has been so very busy that I hesitate to ask such a favor.

With best regards,

Sincerely,

Philip W. Buchen
