Office of the Assistant Secretary for Policy

MISSION

OFFICE OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY FOR POLICY

Assistant Secretary for Policy: Richard G. Darman

The Assistant Secretary for Policy serves as the principal advisor to the Secretary on matters regarding international economic policy, energy and strategic resource policies, regulatory policy, and other matters of direct concern to the Secretary. The Office of the Assistant Secretary for Policy is responsible for coordinating and integrating all policy matters concerning more than one operating unit of the Department of Commerce.

The Assistant Secretary serves as the Executive Director of the Commerce Policy Council and as the Department's principal policy liaison with other Agencies of Government--including the Energy Resources Council, the National Security Council, the Domestic Council, the Council on Wage and Price Stability, the Agricultural Policy Committee, the Commodities Policy Coordinating Committee and the Economic Policy Board.

In carrying out the Office's mission, the Assistant Secretary oversees the efforts of four units within the Office:

Bureau of International Economic Policy and Research.

The Bureau of International Economic Policy and Research (BIEPR) develops, coordinates, and recommends positions and policies on trade, finance, and investment issues to ensure that the broad national objectives of the U.S. business, consumer, and other major sectors of the U.S. economy are represented effectively in the formulation and implementation of U.S. international economic policy. In carrying out this mission, the Bureau participates in policy-level meetings and multilateral negotiations, develops statistical data in support of its international economic and commercial activities, and conducts research on both foreign investment in the United States and U.S. investment abroad.

The Deputy Assistant Secretary for International Economic Policy and Research is the Director of the Bureau.

Office of Energy and Strategic Resource Policy.

The Office of Energy and Strategic Resource Policy (OESRP) has the mission of developing and coordinating policy on strategic resource issues of direct concern to the Secretary of Commerce and the Assistant Secretary for Policy, particularly in the areas of energy, commodities, and oceans policy. OESRP also provides staff assistance for Secretarial (as Chairman) and Departmental participation in the Energy Resources Council, and for Departmental participation in the Economic Policy Board/National Security Council Commodities Policy Coordinating Committee.

The Deputy Assistant Secretary for Energy and Strategic Resource Policy is the Director of the Office.

Office of Regulatory Economics and Policy.

The Office of Regulatory Economics and Policy (OREP) provides analysis, review, and coordination on regulatory policy matters of significance to the Department and its Regulatory Policy Committee. The Office also provides assistance in representing Departmental views on regulatory matters to the Office of Management and Budget, the Economic Policy Board, and the Domestic Council.

The Office is headed by a Director.

Office of Policy Development and Coordination.

The Office of Policy Development and Coordination (OPDC) coordinates and monitors the development of Departmental policy issues of Secretarial concern and provides research and analytical support for selected priority policy matters. OPDC also provides staff assistance for the Commerce Policy Council and serves as the Departmental liaison with the Water Resources Council and the National Center for Productivity and Quality of Working Life.

The Deputy Assistant Secretary for Policy Development and Coordination is the Director of the Office.

MAJOR STATUTORY AUTHORITIES

OFFICE OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY FOR POLICY

The position of Assistant Secretary of Commerce, established by the Act of February 14, 1903 (15 U.S.C. 1504), was designated on February 2, 1976 (Department Organization Order 10-2) as the Assistant Secretary for Policy. The Assistant Secretary is appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate.

The Assistant Secretary for Policy is delegated the authority of the Secretary of Commerce under:

- a. The Act of February 14, 1903, (15 U.S.C. 1512 et seq., 15 U.S.C. 171 et seq.) as amended, as necessary to carry out the functions of the offices under him;
- b. Section 4221 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, as amended (26 U.S.C. 4221) and the Tariff Act of 1930, as amended (19 U.S.C. 1309), insofar as they relate to findings with respect to exemptions from taxes and import duties on supplies and equipment for aircraft;
- c. Sections 135 and 104 of the Trade Act of 1974 (88 Stat. 1978, 19 U.S.C. 2155 and 2114) and Section 4(d) of Executive Order 11846 of March 27, 1975, relating to direct negotiation support and the policy matters associated with industry policy and sector advisory committees;
- d. Sections 5(b) and 5(c) of Executive Order 11846 of March 27, 1975, relating to quantitative import restrictions and monitoring of imports under orderly market agreements;
- e. The Foreign Investment Study act of 1974 (Public Law 93-479, 88 Stat. 1450, 15 U.S.C. 78b. note), which provides for a comprehensive, overall study of foreign direct investments in the United States. The functions thereunder shall be carried out in close coordination with the Bureau of Economic Analysis (Department Organization Order 35-1A, subparagraph 3.0ld.), including thereunder to the extent feasible the division or assignment of responsibilities. Any regulations established to carry out functions under the Act and reports to be submitted to the Congress are to be issued by the Secretary; and
- f. Executive Order 11858, of May 7, 1975, relating to foreign investment in the United States.

None of the four Departmental Offices comprising the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Policy has any major statutory authorities pertaining exclusively to it.

HISTORICAL BACKGROUND

OFFICE OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY FOR POLICY

The position of Assistant Secretary of Commerce, established in the Act of February 14, 1903 (15 U.S.C. 1504), was designated on February 2, 1976 (Department Organization Order 10-2) as the Assistant Secretary for Policy.

Prior to the May 19, 1976 consolidation of policy functions and the creation of the new Office of the Assistant Secretary for Policy, the Department had little or no comprehensive, Secretarial-level policy development capability. The work of the predecessor policy office tended to be "special projects" work. And, in the view of the Secretary of Commerce, the Department's broad policy analytical and interagency policy development capabilities were not as strong as they should be. The May 19, 1976 organization—and the further development of the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Policy—were intended to remedy these deficiencies.

Bureau of International Economic Policy and Research (BIEPR).

During the late 1950s Departmental officials increasingly became aware that the U.S. domestic economy was influenced by international trade, finance, and investment policies. This led in the early 1960s to the establishment of the Office of Commercial and Financial Policy within the Bureau of International Commerce. That Office was organized on a functional basis, with component units staffed to deal with policy issues in the areas of trade, international finance, international investment, foreign business practices, commodity problems, insurance, and transportation.

In 1973, an International Economic Policy and Research staff unit, independent from and parallel to the Bureau of Domestic Commerce, was established and became part of the newly-created Domestic and International Business Administration (DIBA). This staff unit, designated a Bureau in 1975, was directed by the Deputy Assistant Secretary for International Economic Policy and Research, who reported to the Assistant Secretary for Domestic and International Business.

Because the diversity and typically promotional or regulatory character of DIBA program responsibilities inhibited the full exercise of the Department's international economic policy responsibilities, and because the Bureau of International Economic Policy and Research was virtually completely dedicated to policy research and policy developments, on May 19, 1976 BIEPR became a component unit of the newly-created Office of the Assistant Secretary for Policy.

Office of Energy and Strategic Resource Policy.

The Office of Energy and Strategic Resource Policy, established May 19, 1976, assumed in the Office of the Secretary the energy policy and coordination responsibilities of the Office of Energy Policy and Programs and the international commodities functions formerly performed by the International Commodities Division, Domestic and International Business Administration (DIBA). The remainder of the Office of Energy Policy and Programs was reconstituted in DIBA as the Office of Energy Programs and was charged with administering the Department's principal programmatic—as distinguished from policy—analytical—functions.

The Office of Energy and Strategic Resource Policy assumed Departmental oceans policy responsibilities in response to Secretarial and Congressional concern and in view of the interagency character of the Department's major maritime responsibilities.

Office of Regulatory Economics and Policy.

The Office of Regulatory Economics and Policy was established on February 2, 1976. Its staff previously constituted the Office of Environmental Economics, whose function was to analyze and review environmental legislation, regulations, and related matters. The Office of Regulatory Economics and Policy now provides broader guidance on economic policy analyses, particularly with respect to economic impacts and cost/benefit assessments, in the development of Departmental policy on regulatory issues.

Office of Policy Development and Coordination.

In 1968 the Office of Program Planning was established in the Office of the Secretary and through its two divisions— Policy Development and Program Evaluation—was charged with the development of long-range Departmental goals and objectives and the design and implementation of program management, evaluation, and information systems, respectively.

In fiscal year 1970, the Office of Program Planning was renamed the Office of Policy Development and served, until 1976, as a special project and conceptual policy unit focusing on Departmental matters of direct concern to the Secretary. In November 1975, the size and scope of the Office was expanded through the transfer of the Domestic Business Policy Analysis Staff from the Domestic and International Business Administration.

On February 2, 1976, the Office of Policy Development was redesignated the Office of Policy Development and Coordination and became a constituent operating unit of the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Policy.

MAJOR PROGRAMS

OFFICE OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY FOR POLICY

- I. Bureau of International Economic Policy and Research (BIEPR)
 - A. Major program activities in the International Trade Policy area include:

Multilateral Trade Negotiations (MTN) — The Department of Commerce is assuming an active and influential role in the formulation of U.S. policies and the preparation of position papers for the MTN now in progress under the auspices of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT).

GATT Non-MTN Negotiations -- Continuing bilateral and multilateral negotiations are undertaken under GATT provisions dealing with restrictive or injurious trade measures.

Industry Consultations Program -- The consultations program, operated jointly with the Office of the Special Representative for Trade Negotiations (STR), is mandated by Section 135 of the Trade Act of 1974. In the past two years, seven meetings have been held with each of the 27 Industry Sector Advisory Committees and with the high-level Industry Policy Advisory Committee to obtain policy views on U.S. objectives in the MTN and on tariff/nontariff barriers.

Bilateral and Regional Policy Issues — The Bureau continually monitors trade restrictions and unfair competitive practices by individual countries and groups of countries, e.g., the European Community and the European Free Trade Area.

Trade Legislation -- The Bureau is responsible for implementing trade legislation including sections 201-203 and 301 and Title V of the Trade Act of 1974.

B. The major Economic Research and Trade Analysis studies, which provide the basis on which policy options are formulated, include:

Trade and Payments Forecasting/Simulation -- Using the best available techniques of economic and econometric analysis, this program's activities directly provide policy officials with both long- and short-term forecasts of key international economic indicators and simulations of the potential economic effects of possible policy actions. Present activities focus on forecasting real economic growth and its impact on the U.S., industrial nations, and LDCs; and on the longer-term ability of the United States to compete in world markets given the investment, productivity, and price trends.

Economic Policy Studies -- Issues on which studies are underway include: the domestic economic significance of the current U.S. trade deficit, the structural consequences of rapid U.S. import growth, the impact of foreign trade and investment on domestic employment, the LDC debt burden, and the international economic impact of OPEC oil price increases.

Trade Analysis -- The Bureau prepares and publishes statistical series and interpretive reports on the foreign trade of the U.S. and other nations.

C. Major program activities in the International Finance and Investment Policy area include:

Financial Policies -- Departmental policies and positions on international monetary issues and export financing transactions are developed.

International Taxation -- The impact of the U.S. tax structure and policies in American business is assessed continually.

Investment Policies -- Departmental policy guidance on U.S. investment abroad and multinational enterprise operations is provided.

Competitive Business Practices -- Diverse information is provided to U.S. businesses.

D. Responsibilities in the area of Foreign Investment in the United States is carried out per Executive Order 11858. The Bureau monitors individual foreign investments, analyzes the impact of foreign investment on the U.S. economy and significant industrial sectors, and obtains and consolidates statistical information.

Office of Energy and Strategic Resource Policy (OESRP)

- A. Energy Policy -- The Office drafts and reviews policy papers for the Secretary and the Assistant Secretary for Policy on selected issues of importance before the Energy Resources Council (ERC), and provides staff coordination on such matters with the Federal Energy Administration and other energy-related agencies. OESRP prepares or coordinates testimony for the Secretary, both as Chairman of the ERC and Secretary of Commerce. OESRP coordinates Departmental positions on energy policy matters, provides policy guidance to Departmental operating units, and co-chairs the Commerce Policy Council's Energy Policy Committee.
- B. Strategic Resources and International Commodities Policy -OESRP provides policy analysis of developments affecting U.S. imports of, and international trade in, primary commodities, including copper, bauxite, coffee, cocoa, bananas, tin, lead, zinc, tungsten, and rubber. OESRP is a member of the U.S. delegations to most international commodity discussions, including CIEC's Raw Materials Commission and UNCTAD's Common Fund meetings. OESRP also contributes analysis on strategic and economic stockpile issues and provides staff assistance to the Assistant Secretary as a member of the EPB/NSC Commodities Policy Coordinating Committee.
- C. Oceans Policy -- OESRP, working closely with NOAA and MarAd, provides analyses of oceans policy issues to the Assistant Secretary and the Secretary. OESRP participates in international fishery negotiations, as well as interagency discussion in connection therewith, and co-chairs the Department's Coastal Zone Management Policy Committee.

III. Office of Regulatory Economics and Policy (OREP)

The Office provides economic guidance in the preparation of major Departmental reports on environmental issues. It reviews EPA guidelines and proposed regulations on air, solid waste, toxic substances, and noise; OSHA regulations; other regulatory proposals, such as transportation and communication; and environmental and inflation impact assessment processes.

The Office conducts economic analyses regarding clean air, water pollution control, solid waste, and noise. It assesses national, regional, and industrial impacts of environmental, safety, and health regulations.

The Office formulates and coordinates implementation of the Department's regulatory work plan and priorities and procedures for the DoC Regulatory Policy Committee.

IV. Office of Policy Development and Coordination (OPDC)

- A. Special Studies The Office of Policy Development and Coordination provides analyses of policy issues of special Secretarial interest, primarily emanating from Secretarial interagency committee responsibilities for the Economic Policy Board, the Agriculture Policy Committee, the Council on Wage and Price Stability, and the President's Committee on Urban Development and Neighborhood Revitalization.
- Coordination and Liaison -- The Office provides liaison B. with the Water Resources Council and staff support for the Secretary as a member of the Council. Liaison also is effected with the National Center for Productivity and Quality of Working Life, with staff support provided for the Secretary in his role as a member of the Center's Board of Directors. Coordination and staff support are provided for the Commerce Policy Council and for special Departmental initiatives and studies. Coordination of the activities of the Departmental Regulatory Policy Committee also is a responsibility of the Office. addition, the Assistant Secretary for Policy is responsible on an ongoing basis for coordination with the Energy Resources Council, the National Security Council, the Domestic Council, the Council on Wage and Price Stability, the Agricultural Policy Committee, the Commodities Policy Coordination Committee, and the Economic Policy Board and assigns associated specific responsibilities, as appropriate.
