Party Loss in '76 Feared by Freshmen Democrats By Don Shannon (Excerpted from the L.A. Times)

A group of freshmen House Democrats told Democratic National Chairman Robert Strauss on Wednesday they feared they would lose next year's election because of the Democratic-controlled 94th Congress's record and a possible weak presidential ticket.

A session with Strauss around a House committee room table brought a welter of complaints from 27 freshmen. Many of the 27 freshmen complained of lack of support by the national committee and by House Democratic leaders. They expressed their concern that the party would fail to pick a strong presidential ticket next year.

Strauss told the group committee experts early discerned the new congressmen were going to have difficulty. He said he had offered them political training seminars but had found few takers.

"We think you are in worse trouble than you think you are," the Texan chairman said at one point in the hour-long discussion.

He agreed with the finding by several freshmen that some voters blame Congress for failure to pass particular pieces of legislation over presidential vetoes. Strauss said polls showed that the new members were also blamed for upsetting House seniority rules and deposing committee chairmen at the opening of this year's session.

During the discussions Strauss said at one point: "The President has been having a couple of pretty good weeks, but in my judgment there is no substance in this. The only substance is himself, his manner. Mayaguez is not the kind of thing you build an election campaign on." (6/12/75)

COMPTROLLER (Administration)

MEMORANDUM FOR THE SPECIAL ASSISTANT TO THE SECRETARY AND DEPUTY SECRETARY OF DEFENSE

SUBJECT: Security Clearances for Congressional Committee Staff Members

Tom,

The staffs of the House Government Operations Committee and the Joint Committee on Congressional Operations met two times recently with DoD representatives to propose a change in the existing procedures for clearing Congressional staff members for access to classified information.

At present, a Committee Chairman requests a DoD clearance from the ASD(Legislative Affairs) who refers the request to the Director of Security, ODASD(Administration). If the subject has not had a background investigation, the Director of Security refers the request to DIS for investigation. The results are evaluated by the Director of Security who advises the ASD(Legislative Affairs). Congressional committee staff personnel so cleared are maintained on an access list which is accepted throughout DoD and generally by other executive departments and agencies. An identical procedure is followed for requests submitted by individual Senators or Congressmen for clearance of their individual staff members. Other executive departments and agencies follow a procedure similar to that described above but the great majority of Hill staff clearances, even for committees which have little contact with Defense, is done by DoD. There are some 640 DoD Hill clearances now outstanding.

Under the proposed change, each Committee Chairman would clear committee staff members for access to classified information. Personnel security clearances presently used by GAO would serve as a basis for the proposed system. A personnel history statement, etc., for a staff member nominated by a Chairman for security would be furnished to the GAO Security Office which would request the Civil Service Commission to conduct a background investigation. (Commission investigators now conduct background investigations for executive departments and agencies other than DoD, State, ERDA and CIA). The CSC would return all copies of the completed investigation to GAO where it would be evaluated and a recommendation made to the Committee Chairman concerned who would act as the clearing authority. Staff personnel so cleared would then be certified as required to all executive departments and agencies under the oversight jurisdiction of the committee.

During discussion, it was emphasized that the authority of a Chairman to clear would not be delegated to sub-committee chairmen. Furthermore, the new procedure would not apply to compartmented intelligence clearances or to clearances for staff members of individual Representatives and Senators. In the latter case, presumably DoD or another executive agency would continue to grant clearances.

The announced rationale for the change was the doctrine of separation of powers. Both William Moore, Counsel to the House Government Operations Committee and Eugene Peters, Executive Director of the Joint Committee repeatedly stated that they did not feel it proper that an Executive Branch agency should investigate, adjudicate, and retain the investigative files of employees of Congressional committees that exercise oversight jurisdiction of that agency. They emphasized that a Committee Chairman would follow the criteria for granting clearances specified in Executive Order 10450, as amended.

As of the date of the meeting other Executive Branch agencies, e.g., State, ERDA that are also in the business of granting Congressional staff clearances had not been contacted. Our informal checks with other agencies indicate the proposal will be resisted.

DoD representatives attending the meeting did not react favorably to the proposal. They stressed that since the classified information belonged to Defense, the Secretary of Defense or his designee had the obligation under the Executive Order to insure the reliability of individuals granted access to that information. Committee staff members countered with the argument that what was being proposed was a procedure which had been in effect for the GAO over the last two decades or more as well as being currently used by the Church Committee for all levels of clearances.

It is not at all clear how much push is behind the proposal. Probably Chairman Brooks is aware of his staffs' efforts. But our major oversight committees -- Armed Services and Appropriations -- have not been involved. The staff representatives admitted that some Committee Chairman might want to continue current procedures.

In any event, the proposal will continue to be pursued. We are committed to further discussion in the near future. Before that time, I recommend we discuss the pros and cons with Jack Marsh as a matter of priority.

MEMORANDUM FOR:

THE PRESIDENT

FROM:

JACK MARSH

SUBJECT:

Your Meeting Today With Senator Hugh Scott and Congressman John Rhodes

In reference to your meeting today with Senator Hugh Scott and Congressman John Rhodes, I would add the following background information by way of talking points to any that you may already have:

- 1. Point out to Senator Scott that he was not contacted when the surveillance proposal was first suggested, back in mid-August, because at the time he was moving from place-to-place in Hawaii. All contacts were made by phone. The decision was made because of the high sensitivity at that time not to phone persons where there was a substantial risk of interception. We did not contact Senator Mansfield in Portugal nor Carl Albert and Michel in the Soviet Union. We did call both Case and McClellan in Alaska, but felt that the line was secure enough there for that purpose.
- 2. It is my view that we should view several major pieces of legislation including the Sinai surveillance teams as a part of an overall package. Under this approach it is envisioned that adoption of one part of the package could lead, by the momentum, to the adoption of other major proposals. The steps that I would suggest, and you may wish to change the order, are the following:
- a. Push very hard for the resolution on the Mid-East peace proposal and try to get it through the Congress first.
- b. Second phase -- and you may wish to do this first rather than second -- press for the adoption of the energy compromise.
- c. The third step would be House consideration of the Turkish matter which is already passed the Senate. It is my view that if we can get the approval of the Mid-East resolution, this will help us on the Turkey matter.
- Finally, I believe that it would be useful for you to d. point out to the leaders at the meeting today and the ones tomorrow the grave concern that you have about the New York City situation and the lesson that it holds for all of us. It is my thought that emphasis should be placed on the plight of New York to serve as an example of absolute necessity of financial responsibility and restraint in Federal spending. Recalling Governor Carey's remarks to you on New York being in dire straights because of legislation for which he had . 4 votest are words that every person should heed. With appropriations bills being the major legislative itema in the next 60 days, the story of New York is a grim warning to the big spenders on the Hill.
- 3. In reference to items a, b and c above in the order that should be considered, this may be a question you would wish to put to Scott and Rhodes for their inputs. Since we will be relying on their help to move these on theHill, it might be well to get them to suggest a sequence in which they be considered by the Congress, or at least propounded to the Joint Leadership Meeting tomorrow.
- 4. You might wish to make brief reference to the forth coming veto on the HEW appropriations bill.

SUBJECT:

Senate Hearings on Technological Surveillance

Jack Marsh expressed interest in the hearings being held by the Senate Judiciary Subcommittee on Constitutional Rights, conducted by Senator Tunney.

One hearing was held this week with Dr. Jerome Weisner, but no additional hearings have been scheduled for the present. Hruska's guy tells me that they probably will continue to have hearings on a sporadic basis. No legislation is in the mill. He says this is something Sam Ervin used to do all the time for a little publicity--he called it a Dog and Pony show.

I'll keep an eye on things.

In the event I have not had a chance to speak to you, just a reminder on the calls to Fraser, Diggs and Biester. It may be that I can call some of them, but it doesn't look good this morning.

When you or someone on your behalf calls them, would you please mention that I did try to call them all last evening and was unable to reach them. Incidentally, Diggs' and Biester's phones were both busy for some time and I quitetrying after 9:00. Don Fraser was out and I was able to talk with Buchanan.

MEMORANDUM

To: Donald W. Whitehead, Federal Cochairman From: Harry Teter, Jr., Executive Director

October 7, 1975

The regrettable expulsion of Senator Baker from the ARC meeting was due solely to the White House personnel who controlled, at all times, access to our meeting.

I have just completed a telephone conversation with Mr. Bob Goodwin, who is with the advance teams at the White House, and who was the on-the-spot Commander for admittance to our meeting. Mr. Goodwin acknowledged that No ARC person had anything to do with asking Senator Baker to leave our meeting. He does not know who in fact did speak to the Senator, but he said it was one of his men, or someone from the White House.

He stated that he had received instructions from his boss, Red Cavendy, that no Congressional Members were to be admitted to the meeting. He said this order had come from the "West Wing". I asked if this meant Mr. Falk. He did not know. But he further stated that he understood that several days ago the ARC here in Washington said no Congressmen were to be in the meeting. I told him I was unaware of any such order from ARC and doubted it very much.

Goodwin has apologized to Baker's office.

For background information -- ARC at NO TIME was permitted to determine who would or would not be allowed in the meeting. Up to the time of the meeting we were under the instruction that only the Federal Cochairman, States' Regional Representative Mr. Donald W. Whitehead October 9, 1975 Page Two and Executive Director of ARC, one representative from each state NOT represented by a Governor, and five press people would be allowed to the room. (See the attached diagram.) We constantly fought to get more people in the room.

When we at the meeting, there were chairs for at least 20 more people. Obviously the White House had changed signals and not bothered to tell us. We had no idea who was to sit in those chairs. Also, people began wandering into the room whom no one knew, and Senator Baker and Mayor Testerman were in the room.

In response to my questions, I have learned that at one point one of the Advance men shouted to John Cain asking who all the extra people were? John replied that he had no idea, that they (the White House) were in charge -- it was their meeting. He said he didn't know who was supposed to be there. For example he didn't know Mayor Testerman or Senator Baker were going to be there. He was told they were only staying for a few minutes. He did not ask either to leave, and certainly would have objected had he known what was going on. Throughout, I understand, John kept saying its your meeting, you tell me, and was told "don't give me any lip". Mr. Falk did ask him to help get people into the room who were on a list Mr. Falk provided.

Mr. Falk later asked me to help clear the room which I did. By that time, Senator Baker had left.

Needless to say, no one at ARC would ever have asked Senator Baker to leave, even if it had been within our power. There was no need for him to have left. We appreciate him.

Responsibility for this incident rests solely with the White House personnel.

Dear Mr. President:

I am attaching a copy of a letter which I have just received from Dr. Louis C. Alderman, Jr., President of Middle Georgia College, Cochran, Georgia 31014, concerning the upcoming tour of the Middle Georgia College Ensemble to the Holy Land.

As Dr. Alderman indicates in his letter, the selection of the Middle Georgia College Ensemble to represent the United States is a well deserved tribute to the hard work and dedication the members of this fine organization have displayed. I know they will represent the United States of America in an exemplary manner.

I hope you will give every consideration to their request to be designated as official Good Will Ambassadors from the United States. If under your procedures a designation is not feasible, I hope that you could write a letter of congratulations to this outstanding group.

Sincerely. Sam Nunn

December 3, 1975

L PRESIDENT

Senator Sam Nunn Senate Office Building Washington, D. C.

Dear Senator Nunn:

I hope that the following will give the information requested by Mr. Emory Crandall in his telephone call to my office on December 2.

COCHRAN, GEORGIA

We have been notified by Mr. Jacob Goren, Director of the Southern Region, Israeli Government Tourist Office, that the Middle Georgia College Vocal Ensemble has been invited by the Israeli Government to be the featured singing group in the Holy Land during the Christmas holidays. Mr. Goren indicated that he expects an official invitation to arrive from Israel at any time.

Also, Governor George Busbee has notified us that he will issue a proclamation designating the Middle Georgia College Ensemble as official Ambassadors of Good Will from the State of Georgia to Israel. This proclamation will be presented within a few days, as soon as a mutually satisfactory date for the presentation can be determined

We understand that our Ensemble was invited to be the featured singing group from the United States because of its Bicentennial program of entertainment. In September 1974, the Middle Georgia College Ensemble was designated an official Stay and See America in Georgia Music Group by the Georgia State Chamber of Commerce. Since then the Ensemble has given over fifty performances throughout the state. Included among these were performances at Ft. McPherson for the 200th anniversary celebration of the U. S. Army, at the State 4-H Club Congress banquet, at Six Flags-Over Georgia, at the Veteran's Hospital in Dublin, at the Lennox Square Stay and See America in Georgia Exhibition in Atlanta, at numerous civic club Ladies Nights and at many, many other places.

On December 2, the Georgia Chamber of Commerce presented the Ensemble a special award for being the most outstanding Bicentennial musical group among the forty-five in the state to be so designated in the Stay and See America in Georgia Program.

The Ensemble is to depart Atlanta on December 21 and return on December 30. A partial listing of the itinerary sent to us from Israel follows: After tours and rehearsals on December 22 and 23, the Ensemble is to be the featured group among choirs: the world in a performance of Handel's Messiah in Manger Square in on Christmas Eve. On Christmas Day the Ensemble is to give an evening ance at the new theatre in Jerusalem. Performances in kibbutzes are uled for December 26 and 27. On December 28 the Ensemble is to give a formance in Nazareth, where the Mayor of Nazareth will entertain at a reception and resent medals to the Ensemble members. The group is also to visit Caesarea and Tel Aviv.

Under the direction of the director, Mrs. Howard Henderson, and with the assistance of the accompanist, Mrs. E. A. Ellis, Jr., our Ensemble has prepared a program that has brought audiences of all ages to their feet time and time again. The Ensemble has a variety of costumes—both formal and informal to fit the occasion. All of these costumes have one thing in common: they are bright red, white, and blue. The members sing a program of All-American music from the many periods of the history of our country. The Ensemble is unabashedly sentimental, humorous, and patriotic in each performance.

I have never known a group of college students who have worked harder and given up more of their time for a college activity than the members of this Ensemble. We are proud of the recognition that they have already received, and believe that this-trip will be a just reward for them and their leaders. From seeing the reactions of many audiences, I have no doubt that they will be outstanding representatives not only of Middle Georgia College and the State of Georgia, but of the United States of America as well. Consequently we feel that some designation of the Middle Georgia College Ensemble by the White House as official Good Will Ambassadors from the United States of America would be appropriate.

We sincerely appreciate all of the interest that you and Mr. Crandall have shown in our Ensemble. Please let us know if there is any more specific information that we can furnish you.

Very sincerely yours,

cinic Louis C. Alderman, Jr.

The bill passed the House May 21 and the Senate Sept. 16. Despite holding what one House subcommittee aide described as "marathon" sessions, conferees remained in disagreement. Chief differences between the House and Senate versions concerned whether to shift the burden of proof for determining suitability for parole from the prisoner to the parole board and whether to give credit for time spent outside of prison if a prisoner violated parole and was re-incarcerated. "Countercyclical" Aid. House conferees agreed in December to accept a Senate-passed proposal that would authorize a new grant program of "countercyclical" aid to help state and local governments combat recession. Sponsors of the proposal argued that state and local tax increases and service cutbacks would counteract federal efforts to stimulate the economy.

The grants would go to state and local governments with unemployment rates higher than 6 per cent only when the national unemployment rate exceeded 6 per cent. The total cost of the 15-month program would be $1.9-billion if the national rate stayed at its November level of 8.3 per cent.

The House held up final action on the proposal, part of a local public works bill (HR 5247), until January. The bill faces an almost certain veto. (Weekly Report p. 2792)

Municipal Bankruptcies. House-Senate conferees did not finish action before the end of the year on legislation (HR 10624) that would make it easier for cities like New York to adjust repayment of their debts through municipal bankruptcy proceedings. President Ford had requested action on similar legislation in case a federal loan program did not prevent a New York default. (Weekly Report p. 2702))

Transportation/Communications ACTION COMPLETED

Rail Revitalization. Congress Dec. 19 cleared for the President a bill (S 2718) authorizing up to $6.5-billion in financial assistance—grants and loans—for the nation's ailing railroads. Spokesmen for President Ford announced he would veto the measure.

The bill would lessen federal regulation of the rail system, giving the railroads more flexibility in setting freight rates.

Although the legislation would provide funds for all railroads, a large portion of the aid ($2.1-billion) would go to the Consolidated Rail Corporation (Conrail), the government agency created to operate the bankrupt Penn Central and other bankrupt Northeast and Midwest railroads beginning in February 1976. (Weekly Report p. 2737)

Congress gave the go-ahead to the reorganization of the seven bankrupt Northeast and Midwest railroads by not disapproving before a Nov. 10 deadline the final system plan for Conrail. (Weekly Report p. 2469)

Crosswalk' Problem

The committees decided to omit the functional category ceilings from the resolutions for practical as well is political reasons. The budget process gave rise to a cechnical problem that Congress had never before had to concern itself with: the different ways in which the Presilent and Congress traditionally viewed the budget.

The Office of Management and Budget (OMB) groups government spending programs into the 16 functional categories. These include, for example, "Income Security," which comprises such programs as Social Security and unemployment benefits; "Community and Regional Development," including urban renewal, housing and some ural development programs; and "General Government," a catch-all category that contains the legislative and executive branch budgets.

Congress appropriates funds through 15 spending bills, nost of which also cover a variety of programs. But the appropriations bills and the functional categories do not natch. One of OMB's categories may include all or parts of 'our or five different appropriations bills, while any single appropriations bill may comprise parts of six or seven of the OMB categories.

The tedious job of matching bills with categories is called "crosswalking." It is necessary if the targets and ceilings Congress imposes on the categories are to be split nto targets for individual bills.

Budget Committee Chairmen Muskie and Adams attributed their decision not to include the functional categories in the fiscal 1976 resolutions primarily to this crosswalk problem. They noted that the process would be casier the following year, since they then would have a list of how the bills fit into the functional categories.

Other Handicaps

In deciding to make 1975 more than just a trial run of the procedures, the budget committees began work on the liscal 1976 budget with several other big handicaps.

The committees had to operate without benefit of a key element called for by the Budget Act: a current services oudget. That is a projection by the Office of Management and Budget of growth in the federal budget during the upcoming fiscal year based on the current fiscal year, assumng no changes in policy.

The object of the report is to give Congress a base line from which to measure proposed changes in spending and tax law. It is due Nov. 10, about a month after the current liscal year begins and two months before the budget committees each year are to begin hearings on the first resolution for the next fiscal year.

Another impediment was the lack of a functioning Congressional Budget Office, the new agency that was to provide Congress with expert economic and budgetary guidance.

It began operating in the late spring, but there was lelay in choosing a director and the agency did not begin providing useful information until well into the year.

In the absence of a functioning CBO, the budget committees relied on an interim task force headed by Samuel M. Cohn, former assistant director of the Office of Managenent and Budget. The task force included budget experts in the General Accounting Office and the Library of Congress' Congressional Research Service.

Still another problem was that by early spring the raditional appropriations process had already begun functioning without the budget committees—or the new budget process.

The most threatening problem the process faced in 1975, however, and the one that nearly torpedoed it, was the state of the economy. Congress had to vote on a budget deficit while the nation was in a deep recession. "They were required to vote on the largest deficit in history," CBO

Presidential Waiver for Burial in Arlington National Cemetery

Someone has erroneously spread the word that I am the White House contact for securing a Presidential waiver for burial in Arlington National Cemetery. I pass along for what it is worth an urgent request that came to me today from Assistant Secretary of the Army, Vic Veasey, and Nancy Hanks (I understand the Vice President is also quite interested in obtaining this waiver).

Mrs. Leonard A. Scheele died in Washington on Monday, January 5, 1976. She is the widow of Dr. Leonard A. Scheele who, for the period 1948 - 1956 served as Surgeon General in the Public Health Service. Dr. Scheele also has veteran status and was eligible for Arlington burial prior to recently-amended regulations. The Scheele's have long-planned an Arlington burial and the Doctor was quite shocked to learn of the new restrictions. Veasey advises that DOD regulations will not permit burial without a Presidential waiver and strongly urges serious consideration of this request.

An immediate decision on this matter is necessary. I will be happy to act as an intermediary on this one.

Dear Max:

As I am sure you know, Susan Ford has graciously consented to be Norfolk's Azalea Queen this year, and I can't tell you how delighted we all are; I can't think of a more perfect choice for our Bicentennial celebration.

I am enclosing a tentative schedule of activities for Azalea Week, because I need your intercession. A group of the Festival Committee members are planning to meet with the Social Secretary, or whoever is responsible for Susan's schedule, in the near future, and as you will see from the attached sheets, they are most hopeful that Susan will be able to be on hand for the entire week, from April 25 through May 2. This has been traditional in the past, and it would mean a great deal to all of us if it could be worked out this year. I can attest to the fact that all the appearances planned are most worth while.

Also, in past years, the Queen's home country has given a reception for the Festival officials, and the various Embassies have been most hospitable. I wonder if an invitation might be forthcoming from the White House this year. These are all very fine people, and I can recommend them to you without hesitation.

Finally, and this goes without saying, we all hope that the President and Mrs. Ford will be able to be present for the coronation, and of course they would be more than welcome at any and all of the other activities.

Many thanks for your help on this. This is the big event of Norfolk's year, and its success means a great deal to me personally.

Cordially,

'Glad to Sign' (Editorial, excerpted, Richmond Times-Dispatch)

During his brief visit to Virginia, Jimmy Carter, currently the leader in the race for the Democratic presidential nomination, demolished one rumor that his critics have been circulating about him. It is not true, we know now, that Carter simply cannot take an unequivocal stand on any issue, for in Roanoke he unhesitatingly, unreservedly endorsed 4-H clubs. Reporters heard him do so and recorded his firm views for the benefit of all skeptics.

On much less important issues, however, Carter did attempt to waltz around without taking definite stands. But even then, it was not always difficult to tell exactly what he thought.

Take the right-to-work issue, for example. Back in 1971 when he was governor of Georgia, Carter assured the National Right-to-Work Committee that he was "not infavor of doing away with" rightto-work laws. But what is he saying now that he is trying to become president of the U.S.? Well, in Roanoke he said:

"If Congress repeals 14-B and it is placed on my desk I will be glad to sign it. But I'm not going to take this on as a crusade."

With this statement, Carter probably hoped to straddle the issue, something that he is quite good at doing. But he really didn't. Anyone who would be "glad to sign" a bill that would nullify right-to-work laws and permit labor bosses to subjugate workers in 19 states is a foe of the right-to-work principle, even if he doesn't take the matter "on as a crusade." And that is why Carter, despite his waltzing, has made his position on this issue crystal clear. -- (3/31/76)

(Editorial, excerpted, Baltimore Sun)

Appropriately on April Fools day, a whiff of autumn could be sniffed in the springtime presidential rituals. Ronald Reagan was calling Gerald Ford soft on Communism; Morris Udall and Henry Jackson were accusing Jimmy Carter of being beastly to New York. Nevertheless, for a moment it was all as credible as sugar in the salt shaker. There of the announced Democratic candidates --Carter, Jackson and Udall -- plus that potent perennial, Hubert H. Humphrey, met with Democratic mayors at the Waldorf-Astoria. What they had to say should have reminded everyone that after all the primaries and caucuses and conventions, two presidential nominees will at last get to the real issues.

FROM:

Senator Taft called me this morning in reference to a program in Ohio which he wished to bring to our attention for possible White House participation. He suggested that this White House interest occur within the next week if a decision is made to try and implement.

This program involves the Mahoning Valley section which is a great steel production area where there is a substantial effort being made to revamp much of the steel industry production facilities.

They have been working with Russ Train at EPA and so far this seems to be going well with permits in hand to assist the steel companies. The major proposal envisions a joint company blast furnace as well as an unit train. The train proposal is one they are working on with DOT. As a part of their employee program they have a major project going with EDA.

Taft suggests that a White House meeting might be helpful to try and coordinate Federal departments and agencies who are considering this operation together with representatives of industry and labor. Taft suggests that I. W. Abel would probably be a participant in such a meeting.

Key leaders in the effort are the Mayor of Youngstown, Jack Hunter (who incidentally is a Republican candidate for Congress), and a person named Sullivan.

The purpose of this memo is to let you know of the Taft proposal and invite your comments on how this might be handled.

HHH Intention: Majority Post

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 29 (AP)—Sen. Hubert H. Humphery (D-Minn.) says he is in "unbelievably good physical shape" after cancer surgery and seeks the post of Senate majority leader in the next Congress.

"That is absolutely my intention," Humphrey said today.

Humphrey, who was interviewed on a telephone hookup by Minnesota reporters, also said he intends to serve another six-year term he is seeking on Tuesday.

"I'm in good share, don't you worry ab ut that, and I intend to serie oft my term. And then, Lord willing, I'll take a look six years from now," he said.

The 65-year-old senator said he expected to be released Saturday from the Sloan-Kettering Memorial Cancer Center in New York City, where he underwent surgery Oct. 7 for removal of a cancerous bladder.

Humphrey is seeking reelection in a six-way race and is heavily favored despite his absence from the campaign.
