

The original documents are located in Box 1, folder “Model United Nations Session Message, 1975” of the Eliska Hasek Files at the Gerald R. Ford Presidential Library.

Copyright Notice

The copyright law of the United States (Title 17, United States Code) governs the making of photocopies or other reproductions of copyrighted material. Gerald R. Ford donated to the United States of America his copyrights in all of his unpublished writings in National Archives collections. Works prepared by U.S. Government employees as part of their official duties are in the public domain. The copyrights to materials written by other individuals or organizations are presumed to remain with them. If you think any of the information displayed in the PDF is subject to a valid copyright claim, please contact the Gerald R. Ford Presidential Library.

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

To take part in a model United Nations debate is to learn about practical world politics. Such debates teach the art of persuasion and the science of parliamentary procedure. They offer a useful insight into the real world of international negotiation and policy making.

The lessons learned and the skills mastered in model UN sessions will be helpful and rewarding for all who participate in them. And they will surely add to the fund of knowledge, sensitivity and wisdom that provide the groundwork for global cooperation and goodwill.

Gerald R. Ford

