

The original documents are located in Box 21, “12/22/75 - Talking Points: President Accepts First National Bicentennial Medal” of the President’s Speeches and Statements: Reading Copies at the Gerald R. Ford Presidential Library.

Copyright Notice

The copyright law of the United States (Title 17, United States Code) governs the making of photocopies or other reproductions of copyrighted material. Gerald Ford donated to the United States of America his copyrights in all of his unpublished writings in National Archives collections. Works prepared by U.S. Government employees as part of their official duties are in the public domain. The copyrights to materials written by other individuals or organizations are presumed to remain with them. If you think any of the information displayed in the PDF is subject to a valid copyright claim, please contact the Gerald R. Ford Presidential Library.

THE PRESIDENT HAS SAID . . .

December 20, 1975

TALKING POINTS: PRESIDENT ACCEPTS FIRST NATIONAL
BICENTENNIAL MEDAL, MONDAY, DECEMBER 22, 1975

1. It is a pleasure and a privilege to accept this first official National Bicentennial Medal. It is a medal we can all cherish.
2. Besides being most handsome, the design is very significant. It covers the essence of our national heritage -- "Life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." It is truly commemorative of our beginnings in 1776 and of our American independence.
3. I am pleased that this medal will be available in a number of castings -- gold, silver, gold-plated and bronze -- so that all Americans will have the opportunity of owning one.
4. It is gratifying to know that the purpose of the medal is not only historic, but also practical: To raise funds for Bicentennial projects and educational scholarship, which will further assure Bicentennial commemoration in all parts of the nation. I applaud these worthwhile aims.

5. I accept this first Bicentennial Medal with great pleasure

Thank you.

#