BIG BIRTHDAY—Three days short of her 50th birthday, Happy Rockefeller describes herself as being "more a philosopher of life . . . interested in absorbing the whys of life."

Happy: 'Time We Went Home'

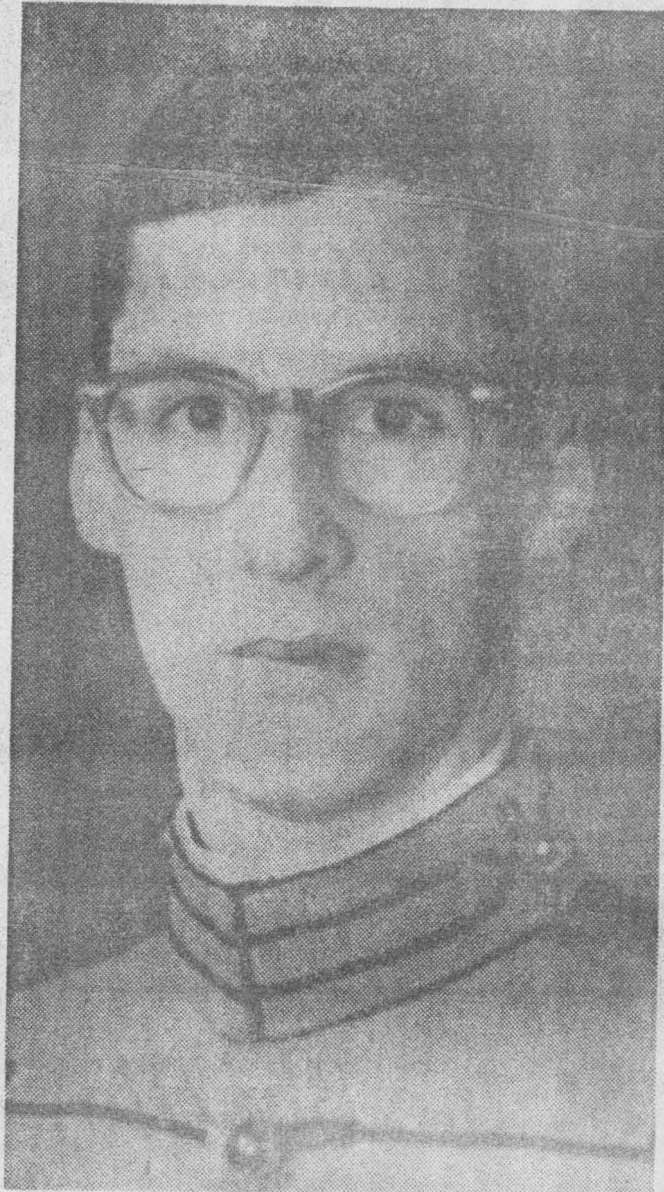

BY MARLENE CIMONS

Times Staff Writer

WASHINGTON—Happy Rockefeller is going to be a half-century old Wednesday and she is feeling pretty good about it. "I'm astounded," she says, laughing, "that the United States of America is only 150 years older than

"They don't have to agree, of course, but they should listen."

She seems somewhat reflective this morning, a side the public doesn't see, during a rare interview in the living

Personalities

It used to be said that government scandals varied from country to country—the British had sex scandals, the French had treason scandals and Americans had only money scandals.

Well, America, it seems we've grown up. Or something. The latest entry in the sex scandal sweepstakes is a soon-to-be published book by the late Kay Summersby, telling of her "relationship" with Dwight Eisenhower while she served as his chauffeur and secretary during World War II. The book, "Past Forgetting," confirms a previous report that Ike wanted to divorce Mamie in order to marry her. Simon and Schuster is publishing the book posthumously, according to Summersby's wishes. She died Jan. 20, 1975.

Happy Rockefeller celebrated her 30th birthday Wednesday night on the presidential yacht Sequoia.

President Gerald R. Ford invited Vice President Nelson Rockefeller, his wife and 11 other guests aboard for a birthday dinner and Potomac cruise.

Other guests were Ford campaign manager Rogers C. B. Morton, Attorney General and Mrs. Edward Levi, Secretary of Transportation William T. Coleman, Senate Minority Leader and Mrs. Hugh Scott (R-Pa.), House Minority Leader John Rhodes (R-Ariz.), actress Kitty Carlisle, columnist Charles Bartlett and his wife, and the President's sister-in-law, Mrs. Thomas Ford.

The women's vote will determine the outcome of the November presidential election, in the opinion of First Lady Betty Ford.

After she had welcomed those connected with the Business Committee for the Arts award hosted by the National Symphony Orchestra, Mrs. Ford predicted yesterday at the White House that her husband will be nominated at the Republican National Convention in August and will be elected in November.

Pointing out that there are more women registered to vote in this country than men, she told reporters she hopes women will have "sense enough to vote for a man of experience."

"It takes a few months to get oriented in this job. There are so many problems."

James J. Pelosi, who for two years was given the silent treatment by fellow cadets at West Point despite official exoneration after he was accused of cheating, has won an Army Commendation Medal for saving the life of an East German man injured in a traffic accident.

Army officials quoted Soviet authorities, who control Allied traffic through East Germany, as saying Pelosi administered first aid to the man when he came upon the scene of a collision between two civilian trucks.

Pelosi, now a first lieutenant with the Berlin Brigade's Special Troops unit, said after graduating in June, 1973 from West Point that those who shunned him there continued the treatment after graduation. "The Silence" was abolished at West Point the following September.

Oillionaire J. Paul Getty, whose will was filed yesterday in Los Angeles, was apparently something of a rake.

There are 11 women beneficiaries in his will. One of them said her bequest was a pleasant surprise; another said she didn't know how much he left her.

Lady Ursula d'Abo, 58, at one time rumored to become Getty's sixth wife, was surprised to inherit oil shares worth $165,000. "The shares will all remain in Getty Oil until I die, as he would have wished," said Lady Ursula. "I am deeply grieved by the death of Mr. Getty, who was a dear friend."

Penelope Kitson, 53, who lives in a converted cricket pavillion in the grounds of Sutton Palace, the British headquarters, was one of the few women Getty would see in the last weeks of his life. She inherited $826,250.

And Rosabella Burch, 43, a Nicaraguan widow who told a magazine interviewer she hoped to marry Getty, inherited shares worth $82,625. She said she didn't know how much she had been left, but added, "Whatever provision has been made will make me happy about the mortgage in the future."

Country singer, Willie Nelson appeared Wednesday before a Fort Worth, Tex., federal grand jury investigating a multi-million-dollar cocaine and heroin trafficking operation reportedly based in Dallas.

The jury began its investigation earlier this year, naming Nelson and 19 other people in subpoenas issued in April. Beside Nelson, country singer Ray Price and Price's son Cliff were called to testify.

Nelson declined comment when he emerged from testifying and officials have not given any reason for subpoenaing the music stars.
