NATIONAL ANTHEMS:

It is not recommended that the National Anthems of the United States and the Federal Republic of Germany be played unless the sponsoring organization is confident that the orchestra is able to play the Anthems very well. It is not necessary to play the Anthems at strictly social functions or at formal luncheons and dinners, as awkward situations and inconveniences may result. It is not the custom in Washington to play the Anthems at State Dinners. When the Anthems are played, it is customary to play the Anthem of the Visitor's country first and the Anthem of the United States second.

When the flags of the United States and the Visitor's country are used consider the area where the flags are to be placed as a stage or a focal point, then place the flag of the United States on the left as viewed from the audience, and the flag of the Visitor's country on the right.

THE WHITE HOUSE
Office of the Press Secretary to Mrs. Ford

The President and Mrs. Ford will host a black tie dinner honoring His Excellency Helmut Schmidt, Chancellor of the Federal Republic of Germany, Thursday, Dec. 5 at 8 p.m.

The dinner will be held in the State Dining Room of the White House, and will be followed by entertainment by performer Joel Grey in the East Room. Guests will dance to the Marine Dance Combo in the Grand Foyer following Mr. Grey's performance.

Emphasis in the decorations in the State Dining Room will be on varying shades of bright pink, with a focus on sterling silver centerpieces. Table cloths will be in pink tones (deep pink, orange-pink and peach-pink) in taffeta and antique fabrics. Round tables will be used for all guests, including those at the head table.

Focal point of each table will be antique silver pieces on loan from the Smithsonian Institution. Part of the collection of Presentation Pieces in the Museum of History and Technology, the pieces are considered an historic document of deeds that have been thought worthy of special recognition throughout the country's history. (see other release).

Surrounding the silver centerpieces in a wreath-like effect will be gerber daisies and ming fern. The daisies are multi-colored in shades of pink to match the table cloths. Flanking each centerpiece will be four tall silver candlesticks, some of which belong to the White House and others which are on loan from the Smithsonian and the Blair House. Ficus trees will be used in the Dining Room and in the Grand Hall.

The menu: cold smoked salmon; supreme of duckling with glazed apples; wild rice; broccoli timbale; watercress and endive salad; bel paese cheese; vanilla ice cream with strawberries flambe for dessert; and demitasse.

Robert Mondavi Fume Blanc will be served with the fish course; Robert Mondavi Pinot Noir with the duckling; and Mirassou au Naturel with dessert.

Background on centerpieces to be used for the dinner honoring German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt:

The silver centerpieces to be used at the dinner are part of the collection of Presentation Pieces in the Museum of History and Technology at the Smithsonian Institution.

Silver presentation pieces come from the custom of giving a piece of silver to an individual in recognition of service or in appreciation of accomplishment. The Smithsonian Collection represents a panorama of deeds, events and persons that have been considered worthy of recognition throughout the country's history. It represents taste and craftsmanship in America at various periods from the mid-18th century to the 1920s, with one piece dating 1958.

The pieces are on loan to the White House for the dinner Dec. 5 honoring German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt. Twelve pieces will be used. Among them:

- Miniature replica of a ship under full sail presented to Adm. Robert E. Perry by the Royal Scottish Geographic Society in 1910. It is 24" high.
- The silver punchbowl presented to Secretary of State John Foster Dulles by Prince Sihanouk of Cambodia in 1958.
- The bowl from a punch set presented to Col. George Armistead by the citizens of Baltimore in recognition of his services in the defense of Fort McHenry against the British in 1814. It is a ball-shaped bowl, 12 1/2" in diameter, supported by four eagles mounted on a round base.
- A pair of large, ornate silver pitchers presented in 1838 by the Whig Young Men of New York City to their chairman, Robert Charles Wetmore.
- A teakettle and stand given to Gen. Montgomery C. Meigs in 1853 by the citizens of Washington for his work on the Washington Aqueduct.

THE WHITE HOUSE
Office of the Press Secretary to Mrs. Ford

The President and Mrs. Ford have invited Academy Award winning performer Joel Grey to entertain at the State Dinner honoring Helmut Schmidt, Chancellor of the Federal Republic of Germany.

This is the first time Grey has performed at the White House.

Singer-dancer-actor Grey won the Academy Award as Best Supporting Actor in 1972 for his performance in "Cabaret." Other honors stemming from that performance came from the National Association of Theatre Owners, which named him "Musical Star of the Year;" the National Society of Film Critics and the National Board of Review, which named him "Best Supporting Actor;" and the Foreign Press Corps' Golden Globe Award.

He has also been cited for his performances in the New York musical "George M!" and his dramatic portrayal of a clairvoyant in the movie "Man on a Swing." He also appears regularly on various television shows.

Grey was born in 1932 in Cleveland, Ohio. He started performing at age 10, debuting as "Pud" in "On Borrowed Time" at The Cleveland Playhouse. His family moved to Los Angeles, and he continued to perform on weekends during his high school years with his father, Comedian Mickey Katz. He was also featured by the late Eddie Cantor in the television series, the Colgate Comedy Hour.

He began a series of nightclub performances across the country at age 19, including a headline engagement at the Copacabana in New York. He joined the Neighborhood Playhouse in New York to study with Sanford Meisner and Wynn Handman and began television performances, winning national attention for his title role in the NBC Special "Jack and the Beanstalk." He also appeared in three films.

He appeared in numerous stage plays and musicals, and in 1967 was signed for the role of the master of ceremonies in "Cabaret." He won the Tony Award that year as Best Supporting Actor in a Broadway Musical. He starred in "George M!" in 1969, winning the Variety Critics Award as Best Actor and a second Tony nomination.

He has made guest star appearances on most major television shows, including "Ironside," "Night Gallery," "The Burt Bacahrach Show," "The Carol Burnett Show," and others.

Grey and his wife reside in New York City and are the parents of two children. He is an art collector, interested primarily in contemporary American and African art.

Note: Grey has received a number of awards this year, including the Israel Cultural Award from the Israel Bonds Association and the "Entertainment Father of the Year" award from the National Fathers Day Committee. President Ford, then Vice President, received the National Father of the Year Award during the same ceremonies in New York in May of this year, and the two met at that time.

OFFICE OF THE WHITE HOUSE PRESS SECRETARY

THE WHITE HOUSE

EXCHANGE OF TOASTS
BETWEEN THE PRESIDENT AND

HELMUT SCHMIDT
CHANCELLOR OF THE FEDERAL REPUBLIC OF GERMANY

THE STATE FLOOR

10:00 P.M. EST

THE PRESIDENT: Mr. Chancellor, it is a great privilege and a pleasure for me and our people to have you and your Foreign Secretary, Mr. Genscher, and the others from your party visiting us in Washington on this occasion.

We, of course, feel that this gathering is a reaffirmation of the longstanding friendship of your people as well as ours, your government as well as ours, a friendship that has a very broad base in military security, economic relations, people to people relations.

Of course, the pages of history in the United States are filled with contributions made over the 200 years of our Nation's history, contributions made by people from your country.

It goes back as far as Baron Von Steuben, who was probably the finest military training officer, as well as fighting officer, who took a pretty ragged American outfit at Valley Forge and made it capable and competent to meet the challenges in the next spring.

And, of course, Abraham Lincoln had a very outstanding German who was a member of his Cabinet, who contributed significantly to our history in that day and that era.

Of course, the contribution by people from Germany to our country also includes the arts, it includes science, it includes literature, and, as Larry Brown and I know, there are some outstanding Germans who have contributed to our proficiency in athletics, one who may come to mind for some of us in the older age group.

MORE

Lou Gehrig was probably a legendary baseball player in our athletic history and his ancestry, of course, was that of your country. But with the people who have helped to make America great, and those that are working with us today in the field of the military, the economic areas, the rapport I think is good for not only each of us but for the world at large.

Twenty-five years of your history has been a period of 25 years of close personal relationship to the United States, and vice versa.

We seem to have the same philosophical views, the same ideological opinions as to how you can move ahead. We tend to subscribe in America to the views of one of Germany's greatest minds, one of the world's greatest -- I am told, as I read history -- Goethe. He once wrote that we can only earn our freedom and our existence by struggling for it every day.

For 25 years, day in and day out, the Federal Republic and the United States have worked together for a freer, better world in a spirit of mutual friendship and great mutual respect.

So, it is my privilege, Mr. Chancellor, in the spirit of our friendship and cooperation and mutual interest, to offer a toast to you and all that you embody and that of your great country.

To the Chancellor and to the Federal Republic and its people.

CHANCELLOR SCHMIDT: Mr. President, Mrs. Ford, ladies and gentlemen:

I would like to thank you, Mr. President, for the kind and warm words you have addressed to my party and to me. I think one of the two of us has to confess to this distinguished gathering that, despite the fact that we did not intend to solve any bilateral problems between ourselves, because we don't have any bilateral problems (Laughter) nevertheless we did make a bilateral agreement just tonight insofar as we agreed to put away the speeches which were made for us. (Laughter)

And so, the President did and I am going to do it, but we allowed for just one quotation from the speeches. You will later on detect me, or observe me looking to my paper once, but before so doing, I would like to point out that I think you were especially generous, Mr. President, in talking of the last 25 years of our really very good and ever-improving relationship, a relationship between your great country and ours.

MORE

You were very gracious not to mention periods of history before that -- I will not dig into it. But: I would like to say that my compatriots and I, myself, we are really thankful for the great help which we have received from your people immediately after the war and that we also are thankful for having had your assistance, your standing firm on matters vital for our own sake; for instance, for your standing firm on Berlin all these years.

You have just come back to the United States from a meeting with the number one man of the Soviet Union. From what I understand from your report to us, you have clearly added one step further in the policy of bringing about balance in the world and the stability of that balance; and bringing about detente, if you wish to call it that, a policy which we have followed, both of our nations, both of our governments, parallel to each other, as we have all these long decades followed in common the policy of making ourselves capable, if need should arise, to defend ourselves against threats or pressures from outside.

It seems to me that so far we have been very successful together with our other partners within the Atlantic Alliance. In the meantime, new problems have come up which we did not foresee ten years ago -- referring to the Middle East or referring to the oil price explosion -- I think one might call it an explosion -- and all our economies so far have not adapted to that enormous change, whether it is in the field of real incomes, whether that is in the field of balance of payments, whether it is in the field of aggravating the process of inflation.

We have talked at length today, and also your Secretaries and aides and my party have talked at length about economic problems. We have exchanged our analyses, we have exchanged our attitudes, our plans for future actions, advice was given freely and taken from both sides -- this is the point where I have to look to my paper (Laughter) -- because I wrote down in my own handwriting a little quote.

I think it is from some American. He is not as famous as Goethe. Nevertheless, it reads: "Free advice is the kind that costs you nothing unless you act upon it." (Laughter)

So, I warn you, Mr. President, to be careful in acting upon our advice, and we will be careful on our side as well.

MORE

But coming back to a more serious aspect of the matter, I think I could say on behalf of my party, especially my colleague Genscher, and the rest, that we were very thankful for this free exchange of analyses and talks and of the plans we might put into operation in the next time, because we do really feel that your great country, five times as big -- I mean in economic size -- than ours, and our second biggest in terms of foreign trade, we do really feel that both our responsibilities, vis-a-vis the world's economy as a whole and the other partners in the free world economy, request from us that we try as much as one can to coordinate our economic policies as we have coordinated our defense policies, as we have coordinated our detente policies, as we tried to coordinate our policies all over the globe.

Now, at this present stage I think in the economic field there lies a great part of our faith, not only of your people, also of ours, also of other people.

If the economic future becomes bleak and uncertain, economic uncertainty and economic failure can lead to economic unrest not only, but also social unrest and also domestic political unrest in a number of countries, not in the first instance in the United States of America, not in the first instance of our country, but we might be infected in the course of time.

I think all my compatriots heard with great satisfaction what you said this afternoon about you would not permit an aggravation of the downward trend of the economy, which at present is characterizing all our economies.

I am not going to too much dig into that field. I only wanted -- using this as an example, the economic exercise of ours as an example -- to express again, sir, our gratitude for this really free, and frank, and candid exchange of views and to express our gratitude for the endeavor on both sides to coordinate and harmonize our policies which, in fact, does not mean that both of our parts have to exactly operate along the same lines, but means that we will have to follow complementary policies in order to achieve the same goal that we have in common.

Ladies and gentlemen, I would like to rise and drink to the President of the United States and our charming hostess.

END (AT 10:14 P.M. EST)

Dear Ms. Collins:

It was a pleasure speaking with you this afternoon and in that connection, I am herewith enclosing some up-dated biographies and recent photos of Joel Grey for use relative to his appearance at The White House Dinner for Chancellor Schmidt of West Germany on December 5th.

It might be of interest to note that Mr. and Mrs. Grey headed the west coast Committee To Free the Panovs . . . a committee composed of members of the arts and organized nearly a year ago to protest Russia's treatment of Valery and Galina Panov, the famed Russian ballet dancers. Due in part to their efforts here on the west coast and of those celebrities supporting the cause, Mr. and Mrs. Clive Barnes in New York, and Sir Lawrence Olivier in London, the Panovs were finally freed and are now residing in Israel. And as a matter of fact, Joel is co-hosting the "Mike Douglas Show" this week and the Panovs are his guests.

Other honors received by Joel Grey this past year include the "Father of the Year" award along with then-Vice President Gerald R. Ford and others, an honorary Doctorate of Letters degree from Cleveland State University, and the Israel Cultural Award from the Israel Bonds Association.

Please feel free to call upon me should you require anything further at this time.

Kindest regards,

Richard Grant

BEVERLY HILLS, CALIFORNIA

the new musical play

On February 24 at the Palace Theatre in New York, Joel Grey will return to Broadway in "Goodtime Charley"....~~a musical~~ set in the era of Joan of Arc in which he will play Charles Valois, the Dauphin, who later became Charles VII King of France. "I decided on this musical," says Grey "because for the first time the story of the Dauphin and Joan will be told from his viewpoint. History regards him as a dolt and a retard but the truth is that he was a terribly shy young man who went on to become a tremendous leader of France, because of the love and strength he got from Joan. It's a love story with music."

For his outstandingly brilliant performance in "Cabaret," Joel won the Academy Award as Best Supporting Actor in 1972.

He was also honored with the Foreign Press Corps' Golden Globe, the National Society of Film Critics' and National Board of Review's Best Supporting Actor Awards, and caused the National Association of Theatre Owners to name him Musical Star of the Year.

He won the British Society of Film and TV Arts Most Promising New-comer to Films Award (The British Oscar), the All-American Press named him Best Actor in a Musical, and BOXOFFICE magazine gave him their coveted Star of Tomorrow Award.

As a follow-up to this award-winning performance, Grey displayed his versatility by starring as Franklin Wills, a clairvoyant, in Paramount Pictures' "Man On A Swing." The critical response to his dramatic/cinematic debut was unanimously enthusiastic as witnessed by the following:

Make no reference to reviews

JAY COCKS, TIME: "A performance of such thorough excitement...of such menacing subcurrents, so shrewdly and subtly conveyed, that it galvanizes the entire film..."

PAULINE Kael, NEW YORKER: "The picture, however, has a creepy, volatile performance by Joel Grey, as the man who says he's clairvoyant, and it's pure gold. Grey proves that he's an actor and a star, you can't take your eyes off him, and you don't want to."

CHARLES CHAMPLIN, LOS ANGELES TIMES: "As 'Cabaret' made abundantly evident, Grey is a fine dramatic actor and he here gives a performance of such complexity (hinting of depths beyond depths) and energy that he almost overwhelms..."

The same critics who lauded his dazzling performances as the decadent Master of Ceremonies in "Cabaret" and the clairvoyant Franklin Wills, have been equally excited over his return to the nightclub stage pointing out:

HOWARD KISSEL, WOMEN'S WEAR DAILY: "One of the few genuine stars in recent years is Joel Grey, who made his New York nightclub debut Tuesday at the Waldorf's Empire Room. He is dynamite!"

TIME MAGAZINE: "Nightclubs are coming back. One good reason is the fast-footed singer-dancer, Joel Grey."

BRUCE SINCLAIR, CUE MAGAZINE: "I have never seen a more exciting performer on a nightclub stage than Joel Grey...if there were an Oscar or Tony for nightclub performers, Joel Grey would win hands down."

JOHN L. WASSERMAN, SAN FRANCISCO CHRONICLE: "A more graceful, enchanting, impeccably professional act simply does not exist."

Grey has been consistent in earning the respect of critics and the approval of audiences since he broke into show business at the age of ten making his acting debut as Pud in "On Borrowed Time" at The Cleveland Playhouse. As one critic stated, "I can only say that the boy is phenomenal. He is as completely at home on the stage without being in the slightest degree precocious as any child I have ever seen."

He knew then that he was "hooked." But his father, comedian Mickey Katz, insisted he continue school. He graduated from Alexander Hamilton High in Los Angeles and on weekends during his student years, was allowed to appear in his father's stage revues. About this same time, he was featured by the late Eddie Cantor in Cantor's famous "Colgate Comedy Hour" television shows.

A series of nightclub appearances across country followed, including a headline engagement at New York's famed Copacabana when he was just 19. ~~His fast-growing reputation as an entertainer of the first rank became an international one with his appearance at the London Palladium.~~

Through these years of playing the nightclub circuit, Grey developed a ~~lasting~~ ^{Strong} aversion to the ~~lonely and disillusioning~~ life of the cafe entertainer. Ironically, this training was to prove most valuable in later years in his creation of the debauched Master of Ceremonies in the stage and film versions of "Cabaret."

However, at the time, his aversion was strong enough to make him give up nightclubs entirely and return to his original commitment, the theatre. He joined the Neighborhood Playhouse to study with Sanford Meisner and later worked with Wynn Handman.

His consummate versatility attracted offers in all media of show business.

In television, Grey played everything from psychopathic killers to juvenile delinquents, western bandits to rock 'n roll singers, and in shows ranging from "Maverick" to "December Bride". He also starred in and won national attention for his performance in the title role on the NBC Special, "Jack and the Beanstalk".

And was seen in
~~During these years, Grey appeared in three films: "About Face," "Calypso Heat Wave" and "Come September," and was seen off-Broadway in the Phoenix Theatre's "Littlest Revue," in which~~ also introduced
~~he co-starred with Tammy Grimes.~~

He was next seen on stage in what he refers to as his "replacement era". Grey took over for Warren Berlinger in Neil Simon's "Come Blow Your Horn"; next he was chosen to play the Anthony Newley role in the National Touring Company of "Stop The World," subsequently replacing Mr. Newley on Broadway. ~~He substituted for Tommy Steele in "Half A Sixpence" during Steele's vacation~~
Then continued his stage career on his own in such productions as the Ronald Ribman play, "Harry, Noon and Night," appearing with Dustin Hoffman at the American Place Theatre. ~~In several seasons of summer stock, he starred in "West Side Story," "Finian's Rainbow" and "Tom Sawyer".~~

Like most actors with a promising career, Grey was waiting for that special role that puts one on top. ~~In the interim, he appeared in "Mardi Gras" at the Marine Theatre in Jones Beach. He calls this "the summer of my discontent". Little did he know that right around the corner was the break for which he had been waiting.~~ It came when Hal Prince called to tell him he was signed for the role of the M.C. in "Cabaret". His critically-acclaimed performance won him the 1967 Antoinette Perry ("Tony") Award as Best Supporting Actor in a Broadway Musical, as well as the Outer Circle Critics Award and the Variety Critics Award.

In 1969, he followed his dazzling "Cabaret" success as star of the New York musical hit, "George M." His portrayal of the Yankee Doodle Dandy Song-and-Dance Man won him the Variety Critics Award as Best Actor and his second Tony nomination. ~~Following a year's run on Broadway, he starred in a six-month tour of key cities, which grossed approximately $2,500,000.~~

~~Upon completion of the tour, he made guestar appearances on most major shows including, among others, "Ironside," "Night Gallery,"~~

the "CBS Friday Night Movie," "The Burt Bacharach Show," "The Tom Jones Show," "The Engelbert Humperdink Show," "The Carol Burnett Show" and "The Julie Andrews Hour". He also repeated his portrayal of George M. Cohan in the highly-rated and acclaimed NBC Special, "George M!" and this past year headlined the A.G.V.A. Entertainer of the Year Awards special.

Grey and his wife, Jo (Wilder), whom he married in New York, June 29, 1958, are the parents of two children, Jennifer, born March 26, 1960, and Jimmy Rico, born September 20, 1965. They reside in New York City ~~in Malibu, California, but maintain their roomy Central Park West apartment in New York.~~

The Greys are enthusiastic art collectors, interested mainly in contemporary American and African art.

In addition to their two children, the Grey household includes three cats -- Rufus, Mack and Minnie.

Schmidt Dinner

Flowers on the tables

The focal point on the table will be the antique silver pieces from the Smithsonian. Surrounding the pieces in a wreath-like effect will be gerber daisies and ming fern. The daisies are multi-colored in shades of pink to match the table cloth. Flanking the center-pieces are four tall silver candlesticks.

(NOTES:

1. The table cloths are the same ones used at the Kreisky dinner.
2. The same type of daisy was used for the brunch yesterday. The gerber daisy has a pointed leaf and is much larger than the daisy we are used to seeing.
3. The candlesticks used come from the White House, Smithsonian, and Blair House. They need 48 and didn't have that many in stock here.)
