The original documents are located in Box 45, folder “Ford, Susan - "Seventeen" Column” of the Sheila Weidenfeld Files at the Gerald R. Ford Presidential Library.

Copyright Notice
The copyright law of the United States (Title 17, United States Code) governs the making of photocopies or other reproductions of copyrighted material. Gerald Ford donated to the United States of America his copyrights in all of his unpublished writings in National Archives collections. Works prepared by U.S. Government employees as part of their official duties are in the public domain. The copyrights to materials written by other individuals or organizations are presumed to remain with them. If you think any of the information displayed in the PDF is subject to a valid copyright claim, please contact the Gerald R. Ford Presidential Library.
March 10, 1975

Ms. Sheila Weidenfeld
C/O The White House
Washington, D.C.

Dear Sheila:

I am enclosing five advance copies of the April issue of Seventeen, featuring Susan on the cover and inside.

I hope to drop in on you one of these days for a chat.

As ever,

Ray Robinson
Managing Editor
Some items in this folder were not digitized because it contains copyrighted materials. Please contact the Gerald R. Ford Presidential Library for access to these materials.
GO NATURAL!
- down-to-earth clothes
- muslin make-its
- plants to live with

THE PRETTIEST
PROM DRESSES
at prices you'll like

KEEP COOL
& LOOK GREAT
AT TENNIS

GIRLS SPOON OFF
ABOUT BOYS

WHY WOMEN'S COLLEGES
ARE BETTER

MARRIAGE: THE KIND OF MEN TO AVOID

MINI-MAG
a great new section!

INTRODUCING
an exclusive monthly column
SUSAN FORD'S
WHITE HOUSE DIARY
The News Makers.
NATURAL BLEND's knits.
Natural Cotton.
Soft contact you wash.
By Pandora. Naturally.

The more cotton the better
COTTON INCORPORATED
1370 AVE OF THE AMERICANS, NEW YORK, N.Y. 10019 • LOS ANGELES • RALEIGH • DALLAS

The News Makers.
NATURAL BLEND's knits.
Natural Cotton.
Soft contact you wash.
By Pandora. Naturally.

Published by Triangle Communications Inc.

FASHION
90 SPRING FORMALS
100 WRIST BITS
111-115 PROM-GOING: Light, airy, feminine dresses for your special night
120-125 SUPER NATURAL SPRING: Down-to-earth clothes and accessories—prices to match!
128-129 MUSLIM MAKES IT: Four crafty ways to add pizzazz to your wardrobe you never thought of 142 SURE HITS: Cool cotton winners—tennis gear for any-wear!

BEAUTY
16 DEAR BEAUTY EDITOR: Problem-solving answers to the questions you ask
28 LIMBER UP! Warm-up exercises for tennis
128-131 CENTER COURT GROOMING: Tips to keep whites tell how to look fresh and pretty on and off the courts

HOME
120-133 INDOOR GARDENS: Turn any room into a greenhouse
162 PLANT-CARE GUIDE: Green-thumb tips

FOOD
194 THE NATURAL ROUTE: Sprout seeds and beans for faddish earth-food specialties
198 BROWN-THUMB GUIDE TO BREAD-BAKING: By Jody Shields
What you should know about getting into dough

ARTICLES
90 NEW NOT TO BUY A LEMON by Peggy Hutchinson, 19
Buying a used car? Don't get taken for a ride.
96 NEW FACTS ABOUT MARIJUANA by Harvey Aronson
Pot may not be the "wonder drug" some insist it is.
111 OUR NEW LOOK: Introducing fresh features in seventeen SEVENTEEN
116 GIRLS SOUND OFF ABOUT BOYS: Special panel report
124 WHY ALL-WOMEN'S COLLEGES ARE BETTER! by Josiah Rountree
150 FACE TO FACE WITH BARBARA WALTERS by Edwin Miller
Co-host of Today, star of Not for Women Only, she's an extraordinary person

FICTION
148 A PARTICULAR GOD by Joel Gross
Laurie had worshiped Larry from afar. Now she ran into him again.

REGULAR FEATURES
6 YOUR LETTERS
31 SUSAN FORD'S WHITE HOUSE DIARY
70 CRAFTS
75 OLD COUNTRY MAGAZINE
86 HOW
92 ONE PLUS ONE: THE BIBLE
98 LAW & ORDER
104 TV REPORTER
110 MUSIC REVIEW
116 BOX OFFICE
122 WORLD VIEW
124 NATIONAL BULLETIN
126 NATIONAL ELLIOT
132 HANSON BROTHERS
136 THE NATURAL EVENT
140 SEVENTEEN TRAVELER
148 SEVENTEEN COMMUNITY
150 SEVENTEEN COMMUNITY
156 SEVENTEEN COMMUNITY
160 SEVENTEEN COMMUNITY
164 SHOPWIZE

The News Makers.
(continued)
The last news is cotton content with easy care. Junior fashions and junior prices by Pandora. The bottoms are new NATURAL BLEND's knits (65% cotton 15% polyester) for comfort and extra protection. Bottoms (S-M-L) are shown. Tops of 100% cotton knit (S-M-L) as shown. Tube: 5, Steen's, 58.

The News Stand
Assistant...Rita
Californian...Gardiner's Mill, Alameda
Conventional...Salt Lake City, 84102
Donges...Oakley Co.
Georgia...Stevenson, 1215 New York
Mexico...Deming, 68801
Michigan...Ann Arbor, 48104
New Jersey...Springfield, 07081
New York...B. & H., 53rd St., 1800 Broadway, 10009
Pennsylvania...Doherty
South Carolina...Mount McKinley
Texas...Waco, 76701
Washington...B. & H., 4th St., 10011
Wisconsin...Day & Hunter, 53107

Sue's Reads: 100 Girls: A Boy's Book of Girls: A Boy's Book of
Walter, 1971

The News Makers.
(continued)
The last news is cotton content with easy care. Junior fashions and junior prices by Pandora. The bottoms are new NATURAL BLEND's knits (65% cotton 15% polyester) for comfort and extra protection. Bottoms (S-M-L) are shown. Tops of 100% cotton knit (S-M-L) as shown. Tube: 5, Steen's, 58.

The News Stand
Assistant...Rita
Californian...Gardiner's Mill, Alameda
Conventional...Salt Lake City, 84102
Donges...Oakley Co.
Georgia...Stevenson, 1215 New York
Mexico...Deming, 68801
Michigan...Ann Arbor, 48104
New Jersey...Springfield, 07081
New York...B. & H., 53rd St., 1800 Broadway, 10009
Pennsylvania...Doherty
South Carolina...Mount McKinley
Texas...Waco, 76701
Washington...B. & H., 4th St., 10011
Wisconsin...Day & Hunter, 53107

Sue's Reads: 100 Girls: A Boy's Book of Girls: A Boy's Book of
Walter, 1971

The News Makers.
(continued)
The last news is cotton content with easy care. Junior fashions and junior prices by Pandora. The bottoms are new NATURAL BLEND's knits (65% cotton 15% polyester) for comfort and extra protection. Bottoms (S-M-L) are shown. Tops of 100% cotton knit (S-M-L) as shown. Tube: 5, Steen's, 58.

The News Stand
Assistant...Rita
Californian...Gardiner's Mill, Alameda
Conventional...Salt Lake City, 84102
Donges...Oakley Co.
Georgia...Stevenson, 1215 New York
Mexico...Deming, 68801
Michigan...Ann Arbor, 48104
New Jersey...Springfield, 07081
New York...B. & H., 53rd St., 1800 Broadway, 10009
Pennsylvania...Doherty
South Carolina...Mount McKinley
Texas...Waco, 76701
Washington...B. & H., 4th St., 10011
Wisconsin...Day & Hunter, 53107

Sue's Reads: 100 Girls: A Boy's Book of Girls: A Boy's Book of
Walter, 1971

The News Makers.
(continued)
The last news is cotton content with easy care. Junior fashions and junior prices by Pandora. The bottoms are new NATURAL BLEND's knits (65% cotton 15% polyester) for comfort and extra protection. Bottoms (S-M-L) are shown. Tops of 100% cotton knit (S-M-L) as shown. Tube: 5, Steen's, 58.
The one and only

Fresh Lemon Hair Rinse

comes in this familiar yellow package.

Sunkist Fresh Lemon in half and squeeze it over your hair. Rinse thoroughly. It helps get rid of nasty soap film and excess oiliness. Leaves your hair looking squeaky clean, smelling lemon-fresh.

So why spend lots of money on imitations? There's only one fresh lemon hair rinse. It's available at your corner grocer's.

For colorful lesions wall poster with many more ideas about how to enjoy lemons, send 35c to Sunkist Growers, Inc., Dept. 2515, 14100 Riverside Dr., Sherman Oaks, Calif. 91403. Sunkist is a trademark of Sunkist Growers, Inc. © 1975.

SUSAN FORDS
WHITE HOUSE
DIARY

The President's seventeen-year-old daughter writes her first monthly column

When we moved into the White House, I didn't think I'd like it. It all had happened so suddenly, there wasn't time to prepare myself.

It was more formal than we were used to, for one thing. When I got home from school—driven by a Secret Service agent—a butter opened the door, took my bookbag, raced to the elevator and pushed the Up button for me. When I said, "Second, please," where my parents' room is, he said, "Thank you, Miss Susan, I will take your things up to your room" (which is on the third floor).

Now that we've lived here for half a year or so, it's more relaxed. The White House staff is absolutely the greatest! But we had to work on them—to loosen them up. It seems they weren't used to an informal family like ours. We really wanted to talk to them about themselves, and treat them like people with personalities and problems of their own. But they seemed used to being anonymous shadows—always there when called, but then sinking silently into the woodwork. It didn't take long to break through to them, though. And now we regard them as warm friends.

We were just getting nicely settled into the White House, when a crisis struck. Everyone knows about my mother's operation for cancer. This was a terrible time for all of us, but we stuck in there. I wanted to spend every minute with my mother at the hospital, but she wouldn't hear of it. So I kept up with schoolwork and other necessary things.

I was really scared the evening my mother went to the hospital. But I felt better later that night after my oldest brother, Mike (twenty-five), his wife, Gayle, and Rev. Billy Zioli, a friend of the family's, flew in. Mike and I have always been very close. He is studying to be a minister. After they talked to me, I felt better—sort of peaceful and accepting.

In my English class at school, we have to make daily entries in a journal each of us keeps. What I wrote the day of Mother's cancer operation expresses how I felt better than I can express it now:

"... I walked the halls all morning; the walls began to move inward, the carpet moved without me. Mother was in the operating room; we were waiting to hear from the doctor. Walking up and down the hall I pictured my mother leaving to the public, shaking hands, dancing in the Grand Hall. The final picture was of her lying on the bed they wheeled her away in: the smile, kiss and last whispered "I love you.""

In the beginning I resisted the fact that reporters were always standing there when we went in or out of the hospital. I felt they were invading my family's privacy, and there was no way to avoid them. But later I realized that the publicity about my mother was very good, because it has helped other women and saved so many other lives.

Things are pretty much back to "normal" for us now, although my mother still has to take it easy. Her doctor says she is coming along very well, and we're all so grateful.

Right now, I'm busy with arrangements for the senior prom at Holton Arms, the private girls' school I attend in Bethesda, Maryland. The proms are usually held at a country club or hotel, but this year my parents invited the class to hold it in the White House. The whole senior class of '75 is helping plan it.

There will be two bands—Quiet Space and the Sandcastle. The class picked the first group, which is from Maine. I knew about the Sandcastle, which I had heard at a party at Hampden-Sydney College in Virginia.

The prom will be from nine to twelve on Saturday night, May 31. We may (continued on page 32)
CLOTHES FOR YOUR SPORTY SUMMER

GREAT MAKE-ITS TO SEW, KNIT, EMBROIDER

SAFE WAYS TO SUNTAN

Young America Today: A Full, Happy Life in California

A Teen Tells: "HOW PSYCHOTHERAPY HELPED ME"

SUZAN FORD Takes a Loving Look at Her Mother

WHAT YOU MUST KNOW ABOUT RAPE

Summer Jobs: TIPS FOR HARD TIMES
"I like to talk to Mom about my boy friends. But Dad just teases me about them"

My mother is a very special person. We like to talk about things, share ideas, just have fun together.

Both Mom and Dad have always been willing to listen. We haven't always agreed, but it would be pretty dull if we did. My parents encourage us to think for ourselves.

Mother is religious. She wanted all of us to go through Sunday school and be confirmed. The whole family went regularly to Immune-on-the-Hill Episcopal Church in Alexandria, Virginia. It is important to Mom that we understand how the spirit of religion can give us guidance.

One of Mother's favorite passages is "Do unto others as you would have others do unto you." My mother lives by that.

She is patient and takes time with everybody. Nothing else is so important that she can't take those extra few minutes to help someone. Sometimes when Daddy comes upstairs at night you can see that he is tense. He tries to let his cares slip away as soon as he steps off the elevator. But he can't always manage it. Then Mother—and I do it too—might suggest calling "the boys" (my three brothers, all away from home) or maybe some friends.

If Dad and Mother do talk together about some of his big decisions, they never do it in front of me. Sometimes I've walked in on conversations, and I knew I should not be there. So I left. At those times she lets him talk things through; that helps him sort things out. My mother really cares about people. She made a point of going down to the White House switchboard room and personally meeting all the operators. If one of their relatives died, she phones the operator and also sends flowers.

I like to talk to her about my boy friends. She always wants to know who called, how old he is, what he does, where he goes to school. She doesn't hesitate to give me her opinions about them, and usually I take her advice. I sometimes talk to my dad about my boy friends too, but not as often. Mostly he just teases me about them.

I was very upset when I went to visit Mother in the hospital three days after her cancer operation. I didn't mention anything to her because she was supposed to be resting. But she sensed that I had a problem and said, "Look, come here, sit down," pointing to the edge of the bed. I sat there and we talked for an hour and a half. You always need to have someone like that to talk to when things get rough. But Mother (continued on page 39).
the new Chris Evert

latest fashion: THE ORIENTAL LOOK

YOUR EYES
a guide to glasses, contacts, makeup

do teens make good SEX COUNSELORS?

BREAKDOWN! one girl's case history

BARBRA grows up
Wild Meadow is violets and jasmine from hidden valleys in the South of France. Rare geranium and chamomile from special gardens in North Africa. And roses, unforgettable Bulgarian roses. Blended together to make a fragrance that’s like no other. So every girl can have her own Wild Meadow of the mind.

“I get lots of letters—about everything from Secretariat to social security payments”

Susan Ford's White House Diary

When my dad was a congressman, I used to be amazed at some of the things people would write him about. But now that he's President, I'm surprised at the things people write me about!

I think I'm about the same person I was a year ago, before he was sworn in. But if you read my mail, you'd think I was some kind of hotshot with influence! Flattering, but unfortunately not true.

I get about two hundred letters a week. They cover a lot of ground: from people's problems with the government to something they saw in the paper and liked or didn't like, ideas they want passed on to my father and advice for me.

I've been asked to intercede, or get my father to intercede, to stop deportation proceedings against John Lennon. I've been asked to use my "influence" (their word) to de-criminalize the use of marijuana. One man wrote to complain that the famous racehorse Secretariat had been retired to a stud farm— as if I could do anything about that! Adults sometimes write urging me to express their views to my father on issues of war and peace. Sometimes they write when they are having problems with veterans' benefits or social security.

I can't intercede in any of these matters, of course. I love the Beatles' music, but it would be improper for me to interfere. I wouldn't ask my father to either (even though one boy from California wrote that "it would be red-neck not to"). I did ask about the Lennon case and found out it was going through the right channels at the Immigration Commission.

I send most of the mail dealing with issues over to my father's office, though sometimes I send letters to the agency that handles the problem.

I get a lot of advice and comments about my activities, all the way from "stay your own sweet self" to "any jackass can take pictures." That one was on a postcard that had a picture of a donkey; I received it after there were stories about my attending a photo workshop out west.

Some people complained after the papers ran pictures of the birthday party for our golden retriever, Liberty. One called it a "posh pooch party." Others wanted to know how I could waste food like that while people were starving.

Actually, the party was no big deal. Liberty gets lonely, so I had her brothers and sisters come from nearby Virginia for her to play with. We shaped her dog food into a cake and that was all there was to it!

One person advised me against touch dancing. Another wanted to help me "find Jesus," the way he felt he had done.

I get a lot of letters from young people. But I (continued on page 20)
The President's seventeen-year-old daughter writes her first monthly column

When we moved into the White House, I didn't think I'd like it. It all had happened so suddenly, there wasn't time to prepare myself. It was more formal than we were used to, for one thing. When I got home from school-driven by a Secret Service agent-a butler opened the door, took my bookbag, raced to the elevator and pushed the Up button for me. When I said, "Second, please," where my parents' room is, he said, "Thank you, Miss Susan, I will take your things up to your room" (which is on the third floor).

Now that we've lived here for half a year or so, it's more relaxed. The White House staff is absolutely the greatest! But we had to work on them—to loosen them up. It seems they weren't used to an informal family like ours. We really wanted to talk to them about themselves, and treat them like people with personalities and problems of their own. But they seemed used to being anonymous shadows—always there when called, but then sinking silently into the woodwork. It didn't take long to break through to them, though. And now we regard them as warm friends.

We were just getting nicely settled into the White House, when a crisis struck. Everyone knows about my mother's operation for cancer. This was a terrible time for all of us, but we stuck in there. I wanted to spend every minute with my mother at the hospital, but she wouldn't hear of it. So I kept up with schoolwork and other necessary things. I was really scared the evening my mother went to the hospital. But I felt better later that night after my oldest brother, Mike (twenty-five), his wife, Gayle, and Rev. Billy Zioll, a friend of the family's, flew in. Mike and I have always been very close. He is studying to be a minister. After they talked to me, I felt better—sort of peaceful and accepting.

In my English class at school, we have to make daily entries in a journal each of us keeps. What I wrote the day of Mother's cancer operation expresses how I felt better than I can express it now:

"... I walked the halls all morning; the walls began to move inward, the carpet moved without me. Mother was in the operating room; we were waiting to hear from the doctor. Walking up and down the hall I pictured my mother waving to the public, shaking hands, dancing in the Grand Hall. The final picture was of her lying on the bed they wheeled her away in: the smile, kiss and last whispered 'I love you.'"

In the beginning I resented the fact that reporters were always standing there when we went in or out of the hospital. I felt they were invading my family's privacy, and there was no way to avoid them. But later I realized that the publicity about my mother was very good, because it has helped other women and saved so many other lives.

Things are pretty much back to "normal" for us now, although my mother still has to take it easy. Her doctor says she is coming along very well, and we're all so grateful.

Right now, I'm busy with arrangements for the senior prom at Holton Arms, the private girls' school I attend in Bethesda, Maryland. The proms are usually held at a country club or hotel, but this year my parents invited the class to hold it in the White House. The whole senior class of '75 is helping plan it. There will be two bands—Outer Space and the Sandcastle. The class picked the first group, which is from Maine, which I had heard at a party at Hampden-Sydney College in Virginia. The prom will be from nine to twelve on Saturday night, May 31.
"I like to talk to Mom about my boyfriends. But Dad just teases me about them. My mother is a very special person. She always wants to know about my boyfriends, and she always agrees, but it would be better if she didn't. Sometimes I've wanted to tell Mom and Dad about my boyfriends, but I don't know if I should.
There they were, Mom and Dad, just before I was born, with three boys under eight—driving Mom nuts. Mom decided a fourth boy would be more practical than a girl. I wasn't my brothers' first choice, either—in fact they used to threaten to send me back.

"My three brothers like to check up on my grades—and my dates"

SUSAN FORD'S WHITE HOUSE DIARY

There they were, Mom and Dad, just before I was born, with three boys under eight—driving Mom nuts. Mom decided a fourth boy would be more practical than a girl. I wasn't my brothers' first choice, either—in fact they used to threaten to send me back.

I learned early—that I'm not as important as my brothers. They've always checked up on me, and when I di some things I wouldn't care to do, they'd say, "That's my girl." I'd say, "What else is new?"

My brothers are good-looking and smart. They've even been good for a lesson in survival.

I grew up with three boys under eight—driv­ing Mom nuts. Mom decided a fourth boy would be more practical than a girl. I wasn't my brothers' first choice, either—in fact they used to threaten to send me back.

I learned early—that I'm not as important as my brothers. They've always checked up on me, and when I did some things I wouldn't care to do, they'd say, "That's my girl." I'd say, "What else is new?"

My brothers are good-looking and smart. They've even been good for a lesson in survival.

I grew up with three boys under eight—driving Mom nuts. Mom decided a fourth boy would be more practical than a girl. I wasn't my brothers' first choice, either—in fact they used to threaten to send me back.

I learned early—that I'm not as important as my brothers. They've always checked up on me, and when I did something I wouldn't care to do, they'd say, "That's my girl." I'd say, "What else is new?"

My brothers are good-looking and smart. They've even been good for a lesson in survival.

I grew up with three boys under eight—driving Mom nuts. Mom decided a fourth boy would be more practical than a girl. I wasn't my brothers' first choice, either—in fact they used to threaten to send me back.

I learned early—that I'm not as important as my brothers. They've always checked up on me, and when I did something I wouldn't care to do, they'd say, "That's my girl." I'd say, "What else is new?"

My brothers are good-looking and smart. They've even been good for a lesson in survival.

I grew up with three boys under eight—driving Mom nuts. Mom decided a fourth boy would be more practical than a girl. I wasn't my brothers' first choice, either—in fact they used to threaten to send me back.

I learned early—that I'm not as important as my brothers. They've always checked up on me, and when I did something I wouldn't care to do, they'd say, "That's my girl." I'd say, "What else is new?"

My brothers are good-looking and smart. They've even been good for a lesson in survival.

I grew up with three boys under eight—driving Mom nuts. Mom decided a fourth boy would be more practical than a girl. I wasn't my brothers' first choice, either—in fact they used to threaten to send me back.

I learned early—that I'm not as important as my brothers. They've always checked up on me, and when I did something I wouldn't care to do, they'd say, "That's my girl." I'd say, "What else is new?"

My brothers are good-looking and smart. They've even been good for a lesson in survival.

I grew up with three boys under eight—driving Mom nuts. Mom decided a fourth boy would be more practical than a girl. I wasn't my brothers' first choice, either—in fact they used to threaten to send me back.

I learned early—that I'm not as important as my brothers. They've always checked up on me, and when I did something I wouldn't care to do, they'd say, "That's my girl." I'd say, "What else is new?"

My brothers are good-looking and smart. They've even been good for a lesson in survival.
Wild Meadow is violets and jasmine from hidden valleys in the South of France. Rare geranium and chamomile from special gardens in North Africa. And roses, unforgettable Bulgarian roses. Blended together to make a fragrance that’s like no other. So every girl can have her own Wild Meadow of the mind.

"I get lots of letters—about everything from Secretariat to social security payments!"

SUSAN FORD'S WHITE HOUSE DIARY

When my dad was a congressman, I used to be amazed at some of the things people would write him about. But now that he’s President, I’m surprised at the things people write me about!

I think I’m about the same person I was a year ago, before he was sworn in. But if you read my mail, you’d think I was some kind of hot-shot with influence! Flattering, but unfortunately not true!

I get about two hundred letters a week. They cover a lot of ground: from people’s problems with the government to something they saw in the paper and liked or didn’t like, ideas they want passed on to my father and advice for me. I’ve been asked to intercede, or get my father to intercede, to stop deportation proceedings against John Lennon. I’ve been asked to use my “influence” (their word!) to decriminalize the use of marijuana. One man wrote to complain that the famous racehorse Secretariat had been retired to a stud farm— as if I could do anything about that! Adults sometimes write urging me to express their views to my father on issues of war and peace. Sometimes they write when they are having problems with veterans’ benefits or social security. I can’t intercede in any of these matters, of course. I love the Beatles’ music, but it would be improper for me to interfere. I wouldn’t ask my father to either (even though one boy from California wrote that “it would be red-neck not to”). I did ask about the Lennon case and found out it was going through the right channels at the Immigration Commission. I send most of the mail dealing with issues over to my father’s office, though sometimes I send letters to the agency that handles the problem.

I get a lot of advice and comments about my activities, all the way from “stay your own sweet self” to “any jackass can take pictures.” That one was on a postcard that had a picture of a donkey; I received it after there were stories about my attending a photo workshop out west. Some people complained after the papers ran pictures of the birthday party for our golden retriever, Liberty. One called it a “posh pooch party.” Others wanted to know how I could waste food like that while people were starving. Actually, the party was no big deal. Liberty gets lonely, so I had her brothers and sisters come from nearby Virginia for her to play with. We shaped her dog food into a cake and that was all there was to it!

One person advised me against touch dancing. Another wanted to help me ‘find Jesus,’ the way he had done. I get a lot of letters—from young people. But I (continued on page 20)