The original documents are located in Box 118, folder "Dunham, Richard" of the Ron Nessen Papers at the Gerald R. Ford Presidential Library.

Copyright Notice

The copyright law of the United States (Title 17, United States Code) governs the making of photocopies or other reproductions of copyrighted material. Ron Nessen donated to the United States of America his copyrights in all of his unpublished writings in National Archives collections. Works prepared by U.S. Government employees as part of their official duties are in the public domain. The copyrights to materials written by other individuals or organizations are presumed to remain with them. If you think any of the information displayed in the PDF is subject to a valid copyright claim, please contact the Gerald R. Ford Presidential Library.

RICHARD L. QUNHAM

- Q: Why did the President pick Dunham for the FPC chairmanship when he has absolutely no experience in the power or energy fields?
- A: It is precisely for that reason that the President selected Dick Dunham as his nominee for chairman of the Federal Power Commission. Dick's credentials as an administrator and manager are widely recognized by this Administration and by those with whom he was associated during the eight years he was either director or depty director of the New York State's budget bureau. He is not known as an advocate of federal power or private power or as a spokesman for consumers. Therefore, he will, if confirmed, be able to bring a fresh look at the issues before the commission, as well as being able to have a good working relationship with the Congress and the White Housem while still maintaining the necessary independence.
- Q: Won't the fact that he is not a lawyer hurt him?
- A: The President certainly doesn't think so. Keep in mind that the commission chairman is the chief executive officer of
- the Power Commission. The President wanted someone with solid credentials in management, and Dick has them.
- Q: By appointing a key member of his staff to a regulatory commission, isn't the President undercutting its independence?
- A: No, the laws under which the Federal Power Commission operates are clear. The integrity of Mr. Dunham also is clear. I don't see any Example conflict.