

SEPTEMBER 6, 1974

PCCL REPCRT

Washington D. C. - Philadelphia

President boarded Air Force One at 5:30 p. m. , accompanied by Walter Annenberg, John Warner (Chairman of Bicentennial Commission), Anne Armstrong, Bob Hartmann, John Marsh, Al Haig, George Joulwan, Dr. William Lukash, and Jerry terHorst, plus North Carolina Gov. James Holshouser, who was in Washington to see Dean Burch and Armstrong on political matters, and was going to dinner anyway. President spent flight alone, reading over his speech.

TerHorst came back to chat and offered following:

Rockefeller came in to see Ford to tell him about schedule for confirmation hearings, which probably begin next week in Senate Rules Committee. Rocky told Ford he prepared to cooperate fully and hoped to follow Ford's "good example."

Annenberg definitely wants to resign London Ambassadorship -- asked to resign early in summer. ON BACKGROUND, Fulbright is considering an offer, but his wife's health is a possible obstacle, and Fulbright hasn't decided to take it yet. Also, Fulbright is not wealthy and may not be able to afford it.

Bob Boyd
Bonnie Angelo

#

POCL REPORT

Philadelphia Airport to Independence Hall

Air Force One landed on schedule at 6:10 p. m. after bumpy flight. President, hatless and coatless, was met by Mayor Frank Rizzo, holding an umbrella. Governor Milton Shapp, who was scheduled to meet him, didn't show. After saying hello, President got in car for motorcade to city down Schuylkill Expressway, Vine Street extended and 6th Street. Either the rain or Rizzo's police had cleared the streets, so only an occasional spectator or two was visible along the way. Best view was by homebound commuters stuck in outbound traffic on expressway. No signs or demonstrators of any kind in sight.

Bob Boyd

#