POOL REPORT

Afternoon ski session.

The President left his chalet at 2:15 p.m. wearing his electric orange parka, chocolate ski pants and a red and white knit ski cap. As he approached the pool, he boomed out a loud "hello," adding "good to see you." He was asked how the economic meeting went and replied "very, very good."

The President never broke stride and continued on toward gondola number one. He was carrying his ski poles but someone else was carrying his skis. With him were the usual crowd--agent Larry Buendorf, ski instructor Denny Hoeger and about a dozen others.

The President is expected to ski for about an hour.
