MEMORANDUM OF CONVERSATION

PARTICIPANTS: The President
Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, Secretary of State and Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs
Lt. General Brent Scowcroft, Deputy Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs

DATE AND TIME: Friday, September 12, 1975
9:15 a. m.

PLACE: The Oval Office
The White House

Kissinger: I don't think the mission should go. I think the Greeks would resent it. But I can ask Bitsios.

President: Why don't you do that? I think McCrary wants to help.

Kissinger: It could blow the roof off in Turkey also. Brademas knows exactly what he is doing when he asked for a delay in the vote until October 12.

[Buchen comes in to ask if Congressman Pike should be notified that we are refusing classified material in view of his Committee's unauthorized disclosure of four words.]

[George Meany calls. Marsh and Friedersdorf come in. The President asks Meany to try to get Madden to give a rule to bring the Turkish aid vote to the floor next Wednesday.]

Buchen: We didn't ask for the materials back. He would laugh at us.

President: I think we should be tough. Ask for the materials back. It is okay to notify Pike, but don't bargain with him.

[Buchen, Marsh and Friedersdorf leave.]

Kissinger: We have a Butz problem. He told Patolichev's people we were anxious to sell more grain, and today the Department of Agriculture announced we would move forward with more sales. This kills our leverage with the Soviets.

President: We better get Butz under control.

Kissinger: Brent, will you call him and tell him to shut up.

We have a massive Defense problem on SALT. At the NSC Meeting, Schlesinger said 2500/1500, but he would look at lower limits. Brent saw a JCS paper going to 600 on SLCM's. That would break the back of the negotiations, I think. I thought we were making progress and I told you so. The Verification Panel Working Group developed nine options, most of which had SLCM's at 600. I said in the meeting, could we reduce the options to three or four for you. That was the end of the discussion. Brown said none of them were very good.

He insisted on 2500/1500 and that we be free for non-nuclears. They earlier had allowed 100 Backfire; now they fell off that. They brought up a chicken-shit objection about how long we give the Soviets to get to 2400. I asked Brown if he had analyzed the option of no agreement. He said no, because the Soviets needed an agreement and would have to give in. I adjourned the meeting.

The NSC system can't operate if we can't discuss the issues. I got Clements in afterwards and he said Schlesinger laid down the law. He said we had the Soviets by the short hairs, and they had to come along. Schlesinger is an awful man. If you overrule him, he will go right to Jackson.

President: He is obsessed with getting rid of Clements.

Kissinger: He is obsessed with jealousy of me.

President: That too. I am amazed at him. The Defense budget is not having that easy a time on the Hill.

Kissinger: Brezhnev couldn't possibly accept such a position. The military would kill him.

[There was a short discussion about Harry Byrd.]

I fear that if you go into the NSC and override Defense, they will hurt you.

Scowcroft: [I discussed my conversation with Wickham -- Brezhnev's need for an agreement.]

Kissinger: [Discussion of various aspects of the cruise missiles.]

They said cruise missiles could replace the aircraft carriers.

President: I can't imagine Hollaway could buy that.

Kissinger: Their whole position is inconsistent and illogical.

President: What do we do?

Kissinger: I would call in Schlesinger and Brown and Brent, without me. I would say you want a SALT agreement, you want a more reasonable position out of them, and you don't want to have to overrule them at an NSC meeting.

I see no way the Soviet Union can accept the DOD position.

We maybe could agree on ALCM and SLCM and then match Backfire with tactical cruise missiles. Backfire until recently was never a big deal. If it is exempted, we will catch hell, but there is no way they will count all Backfire.

For Defense to scream about the Backfire and yet claim the right to keep FBS with cruise missiles on them is inconceivable. If Schlesinger can cripple the NSC system this way, you are naked in front of him, because you never know what he will hit you with next.

I think the only real choice you have is to scare him to death and make him come in with a defensible proposal.

President: All he is saying is we ought to force the Soviet Union to do something we don't think they'll do, without being prepared to deal with that alternative.

Don [Rumsfeld] said Nitze brought a paper in on mobiles.

Kissinger: All the right-wingers said we accepted a violation on SS-9 [19]. We didn't state any penalty for this, and we made a unilateral statement on mobiles, which they now want to renege on.

The whole DOD position enhances the Soviet posture.

President: I want to be well prepared to talk to Schlesinger. I want a SALT agreement and I am shocked at what you say happened.

Kissinger: We would be killed by both the Hawks and the Doves on the cruise missile conventional/nuclear issue. The Doves will say we let cruise missiles run free, and the Hawks will say that the Soviets will say all their cruise missiles are conventional when they are nuclear.

President: Give me a good paper to study. It is damned discouraging.

Call Bertz - shut up, Potchichew says we are in all grain - Beuchman we didn't ask for a materials back. He would bring that up.

P I think we should be tough. Ask for a materials back. Okay to notify Pike but don't bring in as/for (Charbon, Max, Max leave)

K we have a Bertz job. He told Potchichew's people we were anxious to sell more grain + today USDA announced we could move forward w/ more sales. This

Bertz, will you call him and tell him to shut up.

K We have a massive Defense job on Salt.
at a NSC mtg, Schick said 2500/1500 but he would look at lower limits. Brent saw a JCS paper going to 600 on SKCM's. That would break a back of negot & drive. I that we were making prog & I told you so.

what has going forward about our current situation.

The UP was changed & options, most of which had SLK's at 600. I said in a meeting could we reduce options to 3 or 4 for year. That was end of discussion. Brown said none of them were any good - insisted on 2500/1500 & fee for non-moves. They eventually had about 1000 Bankers, & fell off that. They brought up a C.S. objection about how long to give SV to get 2500. I asked Brown if he had analyzed option of no agreement. He said no because SV needed an agreement & would have to give in. I apologized to party - NSC system can't operate if we can't discuss. I got Clements in afterwards & he said Seibles laid down a law - said we had SV by 5/11 & they had to come.

Seibles is an awful man.

If you overrule Seibles him, he will go right to father.

P He obsessed w/ getting rid of Clements

K He obsessed w/ getting rid of me.

P That too. I annoyed at him. The Def budget is not having that easy a time on a hill.

K They couldn't possibly accept such a position. The military would kill him.

(Small discussion about Harry Byrd)

I fear if you go in to NSC & overall Def., they will hurt you.

26 Tony said CMS could replace a ft carrier.

P Can't imagine Holloman could buy that.

R Their whole position is inconsistent & illogical

P What do we do.

R I would call in Schles <sup>+ Burt, w/o me.</sup> & I would say you want a Salt agreement, you want a more reasonable portion out of them & you don't want to have to overrule them at an NSC mtg.

I see no way CSO can accept a DoD position.

W - maybe could agree on AECM & SLEM & then match backfire w/ Tac CMS. But ~~that~~ backfire talk severity was over a big deal. If it is exempted, we will catch hell, but no way they will count all backfire.

For Dep. to know what backfire & get down F&S w/ CMS on them is unacceptable.

If Schles can cripple a NSC system this way you are making in part of him, because you never know what he will hit you w/ next.

I think the only real choice you have is to count him to death & make him come in w/ a dly. proposal

P All he is saying is we ought to force CSO to do something we don't think he will do, w/o being prepared to deal w/ that alternative.
