

Dear Mrs. Ford:

Number one, we both have the same name, we have similar looks and are approximately the same age.

My problem is that I am also a relatively known celebrity ^{wife} "Tennessee Ernie" being my husband.

I have never had a problem with my credit cards or cashing a check, now all this has changed!

I am now accused of being "you," or fraudulently using your name.

One minute I am fawned upon and the next time I am hauled to the managers' office to expose all my damned credit cards, plus drivers permit (with picture). I will admit my picture on the drivers' permit looks like a picture of some pathetic creature from a beleaguered nation.

I thank you for all the fun + hate you for being a size 8.

Sincerely,
Betty Ford
