Scope and Content Note

The L. William Seidman Files document all aspects of his work as Assistant to the President for Economic Affairs and executive director of the Economic Policy Board (EPB), 1974-77, including: the operation of the EPB, the administration's handling of specific economic issues, interactions with other agencies handling economic questions, and Seidman's trips and speeches.

Described below under separate headings are Seidman's role in the Ford White House, the scope and content of the collection, and related materials in other Ford Library collections.

Seidman's Role in the Administration

Seidman, a successful businessman with considerable experience in public affairs at the state and local level, came to Washington to join the Ford vice presidential staff in February 1974. On August 18, 1974, he transferred to the White House Staff.

A few days later President Ford named Seidman as executive director of the Conference on Inflation to be held on September 27-28, 1974. Seidman worked with an eight member steering committee (four from the executive branch and four from Congress) and drew together a staff from the White House and several departments and agencies. Besides the final Conference on Inflation in Washington, Seidman and his staff organized twelve small conferences held around the country between September 5 and 23, each relating to a specific sector of the economy. The objective of these sector conferences and the final conference was to explore thoroughly the causes and cures for inflation and to solicit advice on how to deal with the problem. After the Conference on Inflation ended on September 28, recommendations were compiled and analyzed so that the President could present a specific program to Congress in his economic address on October 8.

Another outgrowth of the inflation conferences was the recognition of a need for some changes in the methods and structures used by the executive branch in handling economic policy questions. On September 30 the President signed Executive Order 11808 establishing the Economic Policy Board. He named Seidman its executive director, with the additional title of Assistant to the President for Economic Affairs.

The EPB was responsible for providing advice to the President on all aspects of national and international economic policy and for the formulation, coordination and implementation of all economic policy. It did so by coordinating the work of existing executive branch agencies and departments and not by building a new bureaucracy to take control of economic affairs.

The full EPB included virtually all the members of the Cabinet and was chaired by the Secretary of the Treasury. The Executive Committee, also chaired by William Simon, included only the Secretaries of State, Commerce, and Labor; the Director of the Office of Management and Budget; the Chairman of the CEA; the executive director of the CIEP; and Seidman.

The Executive Committee met three or four times a week, considering an average of three agenda items per meeting. Approximately once a week the President met with them. Members of the full board were encouraged to attend Executive Committee meetings when issues affecting their departments were under consideration.

In addition to these frequent meetings, each quarter the EPB undertook a full scale economic policy review, including an extended session with a group of leading non-governmental economists to discuss the economic outlook and to review policy options.

Seidman was assisted in his work by a small staff including William F. Gorog, Roger Porter, Marvin Kosters, and David Wheat. Seidman also drew administrative support from Birge Watkins, Douglas Metz and other staff members of the CIEP, of which he was deputy chairman. During Ford administration the role of the CIEP was downgraded and the staff often functioned as an extension of Seidman's personal staff, doing research on issues for him and even performing such tasks as scheduling his public appearances and answering routine correspondence.

Because Seidman was the senior White House economic official, he served as a member of numerous interagency bodies such as the Council on Wage and Price Stability, the President's Labor- Management Advisory Committee, and the Energy Resources Council. He also served on several bodies involved with international economic policy such as the East-West Foreign Trade Board, the Agricultural Policy Committee, the Committee on Foreign Investment in the United States, and the National Advisory Council on International Monetary and Financial Policies.

Scope and Content of the Seidman Files

The Seidman material concerns the entire range of domestic and international economic policy. Among the issues with the strongest documentation are: airlines, automobile industry, capital formation, energy, exports, foreign investment, Generalized System of Preferences, grain sales to the Soviet Union, inflation, international economic summits, maritime policy, New York City finances, tax policy, and unemployment. This collection is also useful for studying the activities of federal departments and agencies involved in economic questions such as the Treasury Department, the Council of International Economic Policy (CIEP), the Council of Economic Advisers (CEA), and the Council on Wage and Price Stability (COWPS).

The Seidman files are composed of series from four sources. These are files maintained by Seidman's Conference on Inflation staff, by his assistant Roger Porter in the EPB offices, by his personal secretary in his White House Office and by the CIEP staff. The two Conferences on Inflation series are useful for studying the planning and coordination of the conferences, including many top level meetings at the White House and some staff meetings. Much of the series however, consists of full verbatim transcripts of presentations made at the conferences and drafts and final copies of the lists of participants. There is little material on advance work for the sector conferences and little correspondence with the general public.

The series maintained by Roger Porter in the EPB offices in the Old Executive Office Building include agendas and minutes for all executive committee meetings, memoranda distributed to the executive committee, and a large subject file on issues. These series form the most important resource in this collection for studying both the organization and operation of the EPB and the administration's handling of specific issues. Virtually no material from the first two months of the administration is included here as the EPB did not hold its first meeting until October 1974.

The two major series maintained in Seidman's White House Office (the Seidman Subject File and the Name File) both contain some materials from the first two months of the administration, including a small amount on the transition of Ford to the Presidency. The bulk of the material dates from October 1974 to January 1977, however. The materials cover the entire range of economic issues and there is much duplication between these two series and the EPB Subject File, although some unique materials appear in each.

CIEP staff members Douglas Metz and Birge Watkins maintained Seidman's Computer Controlled Correspondence and the Daily Events File and logged these materials into the CIEP computer for tracking purposes. Most of the correspondence in these two series is of fairly routine nature and was from businessmen or the general public, although some important correspondence with members of Congress is included. Little mail from other officials in the executive branch is included with the exception of occasional invitations.

For researchers interested in most economic issues the EPB Subject File will be the strongest single series. In order to find all of the material on any subject, however, one should consult several series. Because of the large number of series and their various arrangements, it is possible to find materials through a subject approach (EPB Subject File and Seidman Subject File), a name approach (Name File), or a chronological approach (EPB Minutes, EPB Memoranda, or Porter Chronological File).

Related Materials(March 1995)

Key related collections include the papers of Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur Burns, the records of the Council of Economic Advisers, and the files of Seidman's aides William Gorog, Marvin Kosters, Birge Watkins and David Wheat. Other related collections include those of Counsellor to the President for Economic Affairs Kenneth Rush; Paul McCracken, who worked briefly as a consultant in Rush's Office; the Seidman files in the Ford Vice Presidential Papers; and the White House Central Files Subject File, especially categories BE (Business-Economics), CM (Commodities), MC 3-1 (Conference on Inflation), and TA (Trade). The National Archives hold the records of CIEP and a copy of the finding aid for that collection is available in the vertical file.

Researchers interested in the organization and operation of the EPB should consult Roger Porter's book Presidential Decision Making: The Economic Policy Board (New York: Cambridge University Press, 1980). Seidman has donated 48 linear feet of personal papers to the Library, but these are currently unprocessed. Much of that collection, however, consists of duplicates of material in the Seidman files or his chronological files, so most researchers will not be hampered significantly by the unavailability of these papers.

Conference on Inflation - Events File, 1974.

(Boxes 1-9, 3.6 linear feet)

Primarily transcripts with supporting correspondence, memoranda, schedules, lists of participants, press releases, news clippings and printed material. This series includes files on each of the sector conferences and final conference. Topics include conference planning and activities, and recommendations on how to handle inflation. Separate staff files on these conferences maintained by Seidman and staff members Robert W. Miller, Edgar R. Fielder, Robert Kelly, Robert Porter, Peter Fannon and Morris Feibusch were received in disarray and combined by Ford Library staff into this and the next series.

Arranged by conference and sub-divided thereunder by subject.

Conference on Inflation - Subject File, 1974.

(Boxes 10-18, 3.6 linear feet)

Correspondence, memoranda, minutes, schedules, lists and index cards of participants, press releases, news clippings and printed material. Unlike the previous series, the materials relate to several or all of the conferences rather than specific ones. Topics include senior level meetings to organize the conferences, coordination of mailings for conference participants, and conference recommendations on how to handle inflation. The summary briefing books in boxes 15-16 provide a quick overview to the organization and operation of the conferences.

Arranged alphabetically by subject, with a card file index to participants in the last two boxes.

Economic Policy Board Executive Committee Agendas and Minutes, 1974-77.

(Boxes 19-23, 2.0 linear feet)

Agendas and summary minutes of the daily EPB Executive Committee Meetings. This series was maintained by Roger Porter in the EPB offices. The minutes list topics discussed, major points that emerged during discussion, decisions taken, and assignments made. In the first half of the administration some related memoranda were attached to the minutes, but later minutes have no attachments. Minutes of joint Economic Policy Board/Energy Resources Council executive committee meetings held during 1976 are also included here. Topics discussed cover the whole range of economic policy. Subject access to this series can be gained through the subject indexes at the beginning of the series.

Arranged by type of material (i.e. subject indexes, agendas, and minutes) and thereunder chronologically.

Economic Policy Board Executive Committee Memoranda, 1974-77.

(Boxes 24-36, 5.2 linear feet)

Memoranda distributed to the Executive committee for informational purposes and option papers for discussion at the daily meetings. The option papers were usually drafted by specific departments, agencies or task forces. Topics include the entire range of domestic economic questions and international trade policy. This series was maintained by Roger Porter in the EPB offices. Unfortunately it appears to be incomplete for the period October 1974 - February 1975. Some of the memoranda missing here can be found in Seidman Subject File under the heading Economic Policy Board - Memoranda or filed by topic in the EPB Subject File.

Arranged chronologically by the date they were written, which was usually within a few days of the date on which they were discussed at an EPB Executive Committee meeting.

(Boxes 37-112, 30.4 linear feet)

Memoranda, correspondence, question and answer briefing sheets, reports, briefing papers, speeches, news clippings and publications. This series was maintained by Roger Porter in the EPB offices. Portions relate to the organization and operation of the EPB and its task forces and to the activities of other government agencies handling economic matters such as the CEA, CIEP, COWPS, the East-West Foreign Trade Board and the Office of the Special Representative for Trade Negotiations (STR). Other materials concern specific economic issues such as: airline and automobile industries, capital formation, exports, foreign investment, the Generalized System of Preferences, grain sales to the Soviet Union, inflation, maritime policy, New York City Finances, tax policy, and unemployment. Some material on energy issues, the President's energy program and the energy Resources Council also appears.

Seidman Subject File, 1974-77.

(Boxes 113-169, 22.8 linear feet)

Memoranda, briefing papers, meeting notes, agendas, resumes, reports, and drafts of Presidential speeches and statements. This series and the Name File were originally maintained in one alphabetical sequence by Seidman's Secretary in his

White House office, but they were separated into two series in archival processing. Some items in this file predate the organization of the EPB or even the beginning of the Ford administration. When only a photocopy of the top sheet of a document is found in this file, the original can usually be found in the EPB Subject File. Topics include: airlines, automobile industry, the President's economic address to Congress on 10/8/74, the Energy Resources Council, foreign trade and investment, New York City, State of the Union addresses, taxes and Ford's transition to the presidency in 1974.

Arranged alphabetically by subject.

Name File, 1974-77.

(Boxes 170-212, 17.2 linear feet)

Memoranda, correspondence, reports, speeches, news clippings and publications. This file was maintained by Seidman's secretary in his White House office. Most of the folders are for officials in the White House or federal agencies. The remaining folders are for members of Congress or persons representing such organizations as corporations, trade associations or economic forecasting services, but these folders usually contain only a few pages of material. Among the largest files are those for persons associated with government agencies dealing with economic matters such as the Federal Reserve Board, STR, CIEP, CEA, Treasury Department, COWPS, and OMB. When only a photocopy of the top sheet of a document is found in the file, the original can usually be found in the EPB Subject File.

Computer Controlled Correspondence, 1976-77.

(Boxes 213-262, 20.0 linear feet)

Correspondence, memoranda, reports, articles, testimony, control sheets, and a computer produced index. Most documents are carbon copies or photocopies. Seidman's office used the CIEP computer to track issues correspondence with individuals outside the executive branch of government from October 1974 on. In March 1976 scheduling correspondence, political correspondence and quasi-personal mail were added to the computer system. The files for 1974 have not been located; the 1975 files were later donated to the Ford Library as part of Seidman's personal papers. Each incoming document was assigned a computer control number and placed in a separate folder which now contains the incoming material, some working materials, a copy of the reply and a computer control sheet. Occasionally files were closed out and forwarded to new folders. 168 folders listed in the index are missing, but virtually all of them can be found in the Seidman personal papers. In general, responses to scheduling mail were drafted by Birge Watkins and those to issues mail by Douglas Metz. Economic issues discussed include imports, energy, labor, insurance and pending legislation. The computer produced index contains keyword, name, country, organization and subject indexes plus a master listing by control number. Included in the index are materials from the "9000 series" which covers Seidman's scheduling correspondence from October 1974 to February 1976. This scheduling correspondence can be found in the Daily Events File.

The index is at the beginning of the series and the correspondence files are arranged numerically by control number. The correspondence files have not been reviewed by the Ford Library staff, but individual folders will be reviewed upon request.

Daily Events File, 1974-76.

(Boxes 263-274, 4.8 linear feet)

Invitations and supporting correspondence for activities that Seidman attended or regretted. Individual folders for major events at which Seidman was a participant, speaker, or host may also contain agendas, vouchers, brochures and copies of remarks delivered. Birge Watkins of the CIEP staff handled Seidman's scheduling correspondence and maintained these files. This series ends in February 1976 as all scheduling correspondence after that time appears in the Computer Controlled Correspondence. A computer produced index to the Oct. 1974 - Feb. 1976 materials appears in that file.

Arranged chronologically with separate folders for the acceptances and regrets for each month and for each major event. Within the acceptances and regrets folders the materials are arranged alphabetically by the name of the person or group extending the invitation.

Speeches by Seidman and Staff, 1974-76.

(Boxes 275-278, 1.6 linear feet)

Speeches, speech drafts, occasional correspondence and background material, and a speech log. Most of these speeches were delivered by Seidman and many of the drafts are annotated in his hand. Four speeches were delivered by William F. Gorog or Roger B. Porter of his staff. Many files contain only the original or a copy of the speech in its final form, but some contain earlier drafts and background material.

Each speech has a separate folder and arrangement is chronological by the date the speech was delivered.

Foreign Trips Files, 1975-76.

(Boxes 311-319, 3.6 linear feet)

Briefing books, briefing papers, memoranda and cables. Seidman did not travel abroad frequently and when he did it was usually to accompany Secretary of the Treasury William Simon. Besides attending the international economic summits at Rambouillet (November 1975) and Puerto Rico (June 1976), Seidman visited the Middle East (February - March 1976), the OECD Ministerial Council meeting and Eastern Europe (June 1976), and the USSR (November 1976). Much of the material on the two international economic summits relates to the compilation of briefing books for the President, although some concerns activities at the conferences and follow-up. Over half of the series relates to the two summits. For other trips the folders contain only a briefing book with occasional related cables.

Arranged chronologically by trip.

Audiovisual Materials, 1974-76.

Photographic materials, audio recordings, and a video recording related to Seidman's role as Assistant to the President for Economic Affairs and Executive Director of the Economic Policy Board (EPB) collected by Seidman and his assistant Birge S. Watkins. The photographic materials include images of Seidman attending various events; the Conference on Inflation, for which Seidman served as executive director; and slides related to energy production and use from the Federation Energy Administration Speaker's Kit. The majority of the audio recordings are of interviews given by Seidman. They also include a subcabinet briefing on the economy and energy from June 1975, as well as remarks given by Senator Walter Mondale at the New York Society of Security Analysts, Inc., in August 1976. Two filmstrips and an accompanying audio recording make up a presentation entitled "Energy Crisis: What We Can Do." The video recording contains an interview with Seidman conducted in Traverse City, Michigan.

Arranged in parallel to the textual materials.
