TO THE MEMBERS AND GUESTS OF THE SHEYBOYGAN COUNTY REPUBLICAN PARTY

It is a deep personal pleasure for me to send my warmest good wishes to all of you as you honor my good friend and respected advisor Phil Buchen at this special Lincoln Day celebration.

My respect and admiration for Phil have grown continuously from the days of our early friendship and law partnership to his present service as Counsell to the President. The dedication and integrity he has brought to each area of his responsibility have earned him the respect and admiration of all who know him. I am happy to add my own warm sentiments to the tributes paid on this occasion to Phil Buchen, whose distinguished work is exemplary of the highest order of public service.

In this historic Bicentennial year it is fitting that we rededicate ourselves to the morel and spiritual values that guided President Lincoln. Today, as before, our great Republic moves toward a more perfect union where government serves and the people rule. Like the America of Lincoln's day, we continue to seek "a just and lasting peace among ourselves and with all nations."

Dairy farmers united: 60 years strong

MMPA dairy farmers will observe a dual anniversary in 1976: The nation's 200th birthday and MMPA's diamond jubilee — 60 years of service to the dairymen who own and control it.

More than 60 years ago a group of ambitious and foresighted dairy bers, a principle that stands as valid today as it was 60 years ago.

In short, MMPA — a dairy farmer cooperative owned by, controlled by and working exclusively for dairy farmers — has been and is equipped to meet the challenges of positive milk marketing programs, and it has proved time and again its leadership on behalf of dairy farmers and on behalf of solidity of the milk market.

MMPA will observe the dual anniversary in several ways throughout 1976, including with a special issue of the Messenger in June.

The emblem on this page has been adopted to commemorate MMPA's 60th anniversary.

Phil Buchen has agreed to represent the President at the University of Detroit Annual President's Cabinet Dinner on April 30, 1976. This 9th Annual Dinner and black tie affair will draw 1200 of the leading citizens of Michigan and the Detroit area. Phil will accept on the President's behalf their Prestigious Award which has only once in the past been presented to a recipient who is not present, that was Senator Everett Dirksen in 1969. You have championed the climination of bigotry and intolerance and you have sought tirelessly to ensure equal rights and opportunities for all our citizens. Although much still remains to be done in this critically important area, we can look back with considerable pride on the progress we have achieved since your founding. It is a progress reflected in laws enacted, opportunities expanded, and attitudes radically changed. It is a progress that makes it clear that your leadership was not in vain. The special tribute to you by Kent County's Legal Aid and Defenders Society is a well-earned recognition of your outstanding community service. I regret that I cannot be on hand personally to tell you so, but I do welcome the opportunity to join in the sentiments that will be expressed for you.

Your untiring willingness to give your time and devote your talents to helping others has won you great respect. Our own association dates back over a long period, and with each passing year I feel prouder and richer for having friends like you.

Your integrity and skill have been a credit to the legal profession and your services to the local bar association, the Michigan Bar Association and the American Bar Association have contributed significantly to the advancement of such organisations. Further, your devoted efforts in behalf of the Antioch College of Law have enhanced the opportunities of young people to join our profession.

I wholeheartedly applaud the qualities and countless achievements that this special award honors. They are an example of community involvement in the best American tradition.

MEMORANDUM FOR

THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

SUBJECT: Presidential Message on the Federal Courts

As you know, the President addressed the Sixth Circuit Judicial Conference last August at which time he announced his intention to undertake a sweeping review of the needs of the Federal judiciary. We have been working on that project actively since January, primarily with your committee at the Justice Department, and with others who are concerned with the subject.

It is our hope that the President can deliver a comprehensive message to the Congress on the Federal courts before the end of the summer. We see this as a major project to be handled in much the same manner as the Crime Message. As you know, during the Conference in St. Paul last month on "The Causes of Popular Dissatisfaction with the Administration of Justice," the Solicitor General's remarks concerned this project and suggested some of the proposals the Department was considering. We believe that a Presidential Message is a natural follow-up to that Conference.

In order to stay within our timetable for delivery of this message we would need to have the Department's options memo and draft message by the end of June. Please let me know whether you think this timetable is desirable and realistic.

We now mark the beginning of our Third Century as an Independent Nation as well as the 200th Anniversary of the American Revolution. For two centuries our Nation has grown, changed and flourished. A diverse people, drawn from all corners of the earth, have joined together to fulfill the promise of democracy.

America's Bicentennial is rich in history and in the promise and potential of the years that lie ahead. It is about the events of our past, our achievements, our traditions, our diversity, our freedoms, our form of government and our continuing commitment to a better life for all Americans. The Bicentennial offers each of us the opportunity to join with our fellow citizens in honoring the past and preparing for the future in communities across the Nation. Thus, in joining together as races, nationalities, and individuals, we also retain and strengthen our traditions, background and personal freedom.

As we lay the cornerstone of America's Third Century, I commend the officials and participants in the Wyoming Championship Rodeo on their Bicentennial activities. Efforts such as this are helping to make our great national celebration a memorable and meaningful one for all.

Honorable Gerald E. Ford President of the United States The White House Washington, D. C.

My dear Mr. President:

The American Judicature Society and I both greatly appreciate the very thoughtful message which you sent on the occasion of the Justice '76 Conference.

Your emphasis on the accomplishments of the Society in the past and your comments regarding the enlistment of citizen support were noted most carefully by the participants.

Many of those attending the Conference were also able to be present when you made your remarkable speech on the Fourth of July. They then heard a very inspiring address by Father Hesburgh, delivered at the American Philosophical Society building, which is next to Independence Hall, where you spoke.

It may be of some interest for you to know that most of the citizen participants at the meetings believe that the problems concerning the administration of justice in the country today require approaches, and indeed institutions, that are beyond those provided by our present judicial system. The view they expressed is that the courts are important, extremely important, in the maintenance of our democracy, but they believe that in the years to come avenues that supplement the work now done by judges must be devised.

I hope you were able to capture some of the great enthusiasm that prevailed during the entire July 4th celebration here in Philadelphia. It certainly signaled, in a way not yet fully understood, the enormous transformation that has come about in the attitudes of the American people since the time of your installation as President — a transformation that, in my judgment, your administration has made possible.

Warmest wishes to you and Mrs. Ford.

Cordially,

The Honorable Gerald R. Ford President of the United States The White House Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. President:

I have been asked by the President of our Orthopaedic Association to call to your attention, his letter of February 10, 1976 in which he especially requests letters from you which will demonstrate the support of our American Leader.

There is a great deal of pomp and ceremony in these meetings and I know that a supportive letter from you will receive a great deal of respectful attention.

The American Orthopaedic Association which meets every year will have its eighty-ninth annual meeting in Britain. Joint meetings of the English speaking world are held every sixth year. There has always been a great deal of cooperation of these Orthopaedic Societies in combined publications, and especially during World Wars. The fact that medicine can speak a universal language has been aptly demonstrated in these Orthopaedic Associations. If you desire further information for the purposes of the letter, Dr. Ferguson or I would be delighted to provide it.

We are watching your handling of the job of the Presidency with keen interest and admiration.

Respectfully yours,

Alfred B. Swanson, M.D.

The Honorable Gerald R. Ford President of the United States The White House Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. President:

The Orthopaedic Associations of the English Speaking World hold a joint meeting every six years. The next occasion will be in London, September 12 - 18, 1976. On occasion of the first meeting Queen Elizabeth, the Queen Mother, presented each Association with the gold jewels of office for each country. At each ensuing meeting the heads of State have sent greetings to the host association which are read at the time of the inaugural ceremonies. The United States entertained this group in Washington, D.C. on May 11, 1958 when President Eisenhower met with the officers of the Associations at the White House.

This letter is to ask that you would provide me with a letter to bear to the President of the British Orthopaedic Association, Mr. Philip H. Newman, so that I may present it to him at the occasion of this meeting. There will be between two and three thousand leaders of orthopaedic surgery from the English speaking countries around the world present when this letter is read. At this writing it appears to me that at least one thousand of these will be from the United States.

The Honorable Gerald R. Ford Page Two February 10, 1976

I appreciate very much your cooperation and have asked Al Swanson of Grand Rapids, Michigan, who is a member of the Association to respectfully call this to your attention.

Sincerely yours,

Albert B. Ferguson, Jr. M. D.

The history of Wilberforce University spans more than half the life of our nation. Constant social and technological change has tested and strengthened this fine institution in meeting both the increasing demands for new skills and the challenges of modern life.

As the first college in the United States to be owned and operated by blacks, it was a piencer in the best American tradition. It has carried this bold spirit ferward with undiminished devotion to scholastic excellence and individual self-fulfillment.

I applaud its past and send best wishes to those who will guide its future course.

To you -- Judge Walsh, fellow members of the American Bar Association, and distinguished guests -- I send warmest greetings and best wishes on the occasion of this 1976 Annual Meeting.

The function of the law in our nation depends not only upon the devotion and skills of lawyers but on the strength and breadth of belief in the law itself. Our system of government is based upon belief in the law as the keeper of domestic tranquility, the guardian of personal liberties, and the defender of equal justice for all.

Although the Declaration of Independence has already been given wide attention during this Bicentennial year, not enough attention has been given to features of this historic document that demonstrate how deeply the founders of our nation felt about the need for a system of law in which people could have faith.

The system of law that evolved from their debate was not a departure from the legal traditions of the nation against which the American colonists were revolting. Despite their stinging repudiation of the British Crown, the framers of the Declaration did not condemn the English common law or the laws which were in effect to govern the affairs of the thirteen American colonies. Rather, they condemned the failures and weaknesses of the Crown-appointed judges in America to administer the common law. They objected to the refusal of King George III to let legislators and governors of the colonies adopt additional laws "wholesome and necessary for the public good."

Once these imperial obstacles to the administration of justice and to the orderly process of lawmaking were removed, the Americans of two centuries ago put their faith im a legal system that even today has much in common with English law.

It is most appropriate for the ABA to have chosen "Common Paith and Common Law" as the theme for this meeting. The theme speaks of our faith in the Anglo-American system of law and justice which we have long shared with our British counterparts.

I commend the American Bar Association for its continuing efforts to improve the standards and advance the competence of the legal community. These efforts serve well to build public trust in the legal profession and thereby strengthen the common faith in our system of law and justice.

Attached is a draft I have prepared of a Presidential statement to be read by me before all the participants in the 1976 American Bar Association meeting on the morning of August 9, 1976, in Atlanta, Georgia. The President has declined the invitation to address the meeting, and this statement is to be read by me in lieu of his appearance. Candidate Carter will be appearing later in the week to give an address. The statement is drafted with the thought that the President should closely identify himself with the American Bar Association as a lawyer and as a member. This is an identification that Carter cannot make.

Please let me have your comments promptly. If this statement should be cleared with the President, I would appreciate your doing so.

I am leaving for Atlanta on Sunday morning, August 8, and would like to wrap this up and get the President's signature applied before he leaves for Camp David on Saturday.

To you -- Judge Walsh, fellow members of the American Bar Association, and distinguished guests -- I send warmest greetings and best wishes on the occasion of this 1976 Annual Meeting.

Your interests in being here are the interests we share with one another as lawyers. The interests we have in common come from the legal studies we have all pursued and from the exclusive authority we have been given to counsel people on legal matters and to represent litigants before the courts. On these grounds we distinguish our profession from all other callings and refer to other people as "laypersons".

Yet, the right to be a member of our profession carries with it, as the ABA has long insisted, the duty to build excellence and to uphold honor within our ranks. Therefore, we must not let pride in our profession verge upon vanity and cause us to overlook the obligations we have for excellence and honor in the practice of law.

Moreover, our professional pride needs always to be tempered by awareness that the function of the law in our nation depends not alone on the devotion and skills of lawyers but on the strength and breadth of belief in the law. The belief I refer to is a faith, not just of lawyers but of people at large. It is the faith people must have in the law as the keeper of domestic tranquility, the guardian of their personal liberties, and the defender of equal justice for all.

Although the Declaration of Independence has already been given wide attention during this Bicentennial year, not enough attention has been given to features of this historic document that demonstrate how the founders of our nation felt deeply the need for a system of law in which people could have faith. That system of law was not, however, to be a departure from the best legal traditions of the nation from which the American colonists were revolting. The framers of the Declaration, despite their stinging repudiation of the British Crown, did not condemn the English common law or the laws which were in effect to govern the affairs of the thirteen American colonies. Rather, they condemned the failures and weaknesses of the Crown-appointed judges in America to administer the common law and the refusal of King George III to let legislators and governors of the colonies adopt additional laws "wholesome and necessary for the public good." Once these imperial obstacles to the administration of justice and to the orderly process of law-making were removed, the Americans of two centuries ago put their faith in a legal system that even today has much in common with the English.

Thus, it is most appropriate for the ABA to have chosen "Common Faith and Common Law" as the theme for this meeting. The theme speaks of our faith in the Anglo-American system of law and justice which we members of the American Bar have long shared with our British counterparts. In addition, I hope and urge that the theme of this meeting may alert each of us anew to the importance of inspiring within our nation a greater faith in the law among all people. To the same purpose, I commend the American Bar Association for its continuing efforts to improve the standards and advance the competence of the legal community. These efforts serve well to build public trust in our profession but, what is more important, they thereby help to strengthen and extend the common faith in our system of law and justice.

Philip Buchen forwarded, together with his own personal endorsement, your invitation to the President to appear before the Annual Reating of the American Bar Association which will be held in Atlanta, August 3-II, preferably on August 3.

The President was pleased to have this opportunity but it is not possible to make a commitment to you at present due to the many variables in the President's schedule for next year. Attached is the original of a letter addressed to the President from Judge Lawrence E. Walsh inviting the President to the Annual Meeting of the American Bar Association to be held in Atlanta on August 5-11, 1976.

The letter was hand-delivered to me by Judge Walsh. I call attention to the fact that this event may coincide with the Republican Convention, but that you should give the matter careful consideration and advise Judge Walsh of what the prospects are and when a final decision could be made. He tells me that August 9 would be the preferred date during the course of the meeting.

I would appreciate receiving a copy of your reply to the Judge.

As you remember, the speech scheduled by Vice President Ford at the 1974 meeting had to be cancelled, and he declined the 1975 meeting in Montreal because it involved out-of-the country problems.

Dear Mr. President

We anticipate that nine thousand lawyers and members of their families will attend our Meeting. Our Bicentennial theme is "Common Faith and Common Law" and the substantive program will examine and emphasize the shared legal and ethical tradition underlying the Anglo-American concept of justice. We will focus on the interdependence of this tradition. The Honorable Gerard D. Reilly Chief Judge District of Columbia Court of Appeals 400 F Street, NW. (Bldg. B) Washington, D. C. 20001

I send warm greetings to those participating in the laying of this cornerstone for the new District of Columbia Court of Appeals building.

This new structure will greatly enhance the effectiveness of the criminal justice system in the District by providing badly needed facilities for all District of Columbia courts. More importantly, this new building demonstrates the public's commitment to continually improve the administration of justice, not only here, but throughout the country.

I was pleased to have played a part in securing Congressional approval of appropriations for this endeavor in 1970 while serving as Minority Leader in the House of Representatives. If offer my congratulations to all of those who were instrumental in guiding this project to completion and extend my very best wishes to those participating in this ceremony.
