Dear Freddy: Back to work with rusting over, and for the first time in two weeks I've actually done some school work. Even that wasn't much as I had to see Warner Baxter + Myrna Loy in "Penthouse."

Sorry to hear that you've set about to ruin Central's football team, you'd better be careful or Coach Stell will be on your neck, now don't take me too literally. I see where South is doing as well as usual, but I'd like to make you a bet that they beat Central.
You name the terms, I'll even give you odds, and I'll take you up. By the way when you see Sandy give him my regards and tell him I hope they win all their games but the South one.

So your sorority has trouble with kidding girls, you're ^{not} the least bit snooty are you? We just got word that we got 23 pledges, the best on the campus, and to celebrate their good choice we're having a barrel of beer, and a real party tomorrow night. Of course Germ Overhardus and I are in training, so none of that stuff for us.

You should have seen the campus this week-end, more drunks than ever and they all claim that the year is just beginning. I'm afraid to imagine what it will be by the Ohio State game.

Jack Beekwith and myself are trying to drum up a "college romance" for ourselves, but as yet no coed has fallen either for our looks or line. Still the year is yet young and if we work hard maybe some dumb freshman will provide us with a little romance. You see between work and football I must have my diversion and unless you are constantly on the trail of these coeds, you don't rate, and that would be too disgraceful for a couple of "Dehes", tracking some gal.

Everyone else is leaving for bed, after a hard week-end, so I'll better sign off. Enjoyed your letter a lot, so don't get writers cramp as news from Gr Rapids as different compared to the campus gossip. Hear you are coming down to the Q. S. U. game, what's the dope.

As ever
Jenny
